

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. INTRODUCTORY CHAPTERS.

CHAPTER I.

SOURCES OF LAW.

It is the theory of Hindu Law that it has been revealed by the Deity, either directly (Sruti) or by tradition (Smriti). The latter, or the Dharma Shastra, comprises municipal law.

According to Hindu views,* the Smritis were composed by the Rishis, whose names they bear, but Hindu tradition is here, as nearly in every case where it concerns literary history, almost valueless.

There are at present five dominant Schools of Law in India:—

1. Bengal.
2. Mithila (or Behar).
3. Benares.
4. Maharashtra (or Bombay).
5. Dravida (Madras).

* West and Buhler, Dig. Introduction.

As will be seen when treating of succession, there is a singular diversion from the Dravida School in Malabar and Canara. The differences between these schools are generally slight, and need not be noticed in this elementary sketch, but the Bengal School differs materially from the others in regard to the law of inheritance, as may be seen from comparing the tables in the chapter on Succession.

We are more particularly concerned with the Maharashtra, or Bombay School.

The authorities in Hindu Law* in Western India are, according to Colebrooke, the Mitakshara of Vijnānesvara and the Mayūkhū of Nilakantha, especially the Vyavaharamayukhu. Morley adds, the Vyavaharamādhava Nirnayasinḍhu, Smṛitikanastubha, Hemadri, Dattaka Mimāṃsa, and Dattaka Chandrika. The quotations of the Shastris, appended to their Vyavasthas, which perhaps afford the most reliable information on the subject, show that the following works are considered by them the sources of the law on this side of India:—

1. The Mitakshara of Vijnānesvara.
2. The Mayūkhū of Nilakantha, and especially the Vyavahara Mayūkhū.
3. The Viramitrodaya of Mitrāmisra.
- 4 and 5. The Dattaka Mimāṃsa of Nanda Pandita, and the Dattaka Chandrika of Devānabhatta.
6. The Nirnayasinḍhu of Kamālākara.

* West and Buhler, pp. 1, 2.

7 and 8. The Dharmasindhu of Kāsinatha Upodhyaya, and the Samskarakanstubha of Anantadeva.

9 and lastly. In certain cases the Dharmasastras, or Smritis and Upasmritis, or, as it is frequently expressed, the sayings of the sages (Rishivakyani), together with their commentaries.

The relative position of these works to each other may be described as follows:—In the Maratha country and in Northern Kanara, the doctrines of the Mitakshara are paramount, the Vyavahara Mayūkhū and the Viramitrodaya are to be used as secondary authorities only. They serve to illustrate the Mitakshara and to supplement it, but they may be followed so far only as their doctrines do not stand in opposition to the express precepts, or to the general principles of the Mitakshara. Amongst the secondary authorities the Vyavahara Mayūkhū takes precedence of the Viramitrodaya. It has been recently decided by the Bombay High Court in a case* not yet reported, that in the island of Bombay and in the province of Guzerat the Vyavahara Mayūkhū is to be preferred even to the Mitakshara. The Dattaka Mimāmsa and Dattaka Chandrika, the latter less than the former, are supplementary authorities on the law of adoption. Their opinions, however, are not considered of so great importance but that they may be set aside on general grounds, in case they are opposed to the doctrines of the Vyavahara Mayūkhū, or the Dharmasindhu and Nirnayasindhu.

* Pandurang Naik v. Krishnaji Marji.

The former is preferred by the Bengal School, and the latter by those of Mithila and Benares.

The Dharmasindhu, the Samskharakanstubha, and the Nirnayasindhu occupy an almost equal position in regard to questions on ceremonies and penances. They are more frequently consulted by the Shastris of the Maratha country than the Mayūkhūs, which refer to the same parts of the Dharma. Of the three, the Nirnayasindhu is held in the greatest esteem.

All points of law which may be left undecided by the works mentioned, may be decided by passages from the Smritis or Dharmasastras, or even the Purānas. The latter have less authority than the former, and may be overruled by them.

Where the revealed texts (Sruti), the tradition (Smritis), and Purānas are conflicting, the revealed text is the authority; if the latter two (Smritis and Purānas) contradict each other, the Smriti (tradition) is preferable. In case of a conflict between the rules of the Smritis, either may be followed, as reasoning on principles of equity (Yūktivichara) shall decide the solution.

The Mitakshara is the commentary of Vijnānesvara, on the Institutes of Yajnavalkya. The commentator, according to Colebrooke,* lived about the year 900 A.D., but Messrs. West and Buhler † incline to the belief that he flourished in the eleventh or twelfth century of the Christian era.

* Colebrooke, Inher. XI.

† West and Buhler, Dig. Introduction, V.

The Vyavahara Mayūkhū, or sixth ray of the sun, was composed by Nilakantha, probably at Poonah, about 1600 A.D.: it is a treatise on Civil and Criminal Law, and is treated with great respect throughout Western India, and, as has been observed, is of paramount authority in the island of Bombay, and in Guzerat.

The Dāyabhāga, a treatise on Inheritance, by Jimuta Vahana, is of high authority in Bengal, but in Western India is quoted only when supporting the tenets of the Mitakshara or Vyavahara Mayūkhū.

The Dattaka Mimāmsa is by Nanda Pandita, of whom, personally, little is known.

The Dattaka Chandrika is a more concise and more modern treatise on the same subject, by Devanand Bhatta.

Both works have been translated with annotations by the very learned late Mr. J. C. C. Sutherland, of the Bengal Civil Service.

CHAPTER II.

MARRIAGE.

MARRIAGE among Hindus is not of the nature of a civil contract, but is quasi a sacrament.* Marriage (lagna) forms the last of the ceremonies prescribed for the regenerated classes (Brahmin, Kshatriya, Vaisya), and the only one for the Sudra.

An unmarried man has been declared to be incapacitated for the performance of religious duties; that is to say, to offer the oblations deemed advantageous to his own soul and to the souls of his ancestors. No people attach greater importance to marriage than the Hindus; among them it is indispensable for the female sex, and for the male sex it constitutes the order of Grihasta, householder.

Grihasta † is the second period into which Hindus divide a man's life, the first being that of a Brahmachari, or religious student, the third that of Vanaprasta or hermit, and the fourth that of Bhikshu, or mendicant.

It ‡ completes for the man the regenerating ceremonies, expiatory, as is believed, of the sinful taint that every child is supposed to contract in its mother's womb, and is, as to the Sudra and women, the only one that is allowed.

Its obligatoriness is, as to women, among the ordinances of the Veda. Thus religion and law co-operate in its favour.

Hindu women are betrothed at a very early age, and the betrothment, in fact, constitutes the marriage, which cannot, on account of the early age of the bride, be consummated for some years after. The contract of betrothal is complete and irrevocable immediately on the performance of the appointed ceremonies, without consummation.

Except in Guzerat, no ceremony precedes consummation in the Bombay Presidency. If the husband die before consummation, the girl is entitled to all the rights and incurs all the duties of widowhood, the marriage not being annulled by the death of the betrothed husband.

The Courts* will not, however, order specific performance of a marriage between betrothed persons.

Second marriages after a husband's death are wholly unknown to Hindu Law, but in practice have always been common among the lower castes. They have, however, been made legal by Act XV. of 1856. This Act declares that no marriage between Hindus shall be invalid by reason of the woman having been previously betrothed or married, annuls on a second marriage the woman's interest in her deceased husband's estate, and provides for the guardianship of his children under the orders of the Civil Courts.

* See Umed v. Nagindas, VII Bo. H. Ct. R. 122.

Unfortunately, this statute has been acted on in very few instances by the higher castes, and tens of thousands of child-widows are still brought up to lives of degradation and, most commonly, of vice.

This revolting custom is believed to be the fruitful cause of numerous child murders.

Polygamy is legally prohibited for men, unless for some good and sufficient cause, such as barrenness, disease, or the like; but the precept has in practice been generally disregarded. The following text of Manu, which, in fact, prohibits polygamy, has been held to justify it:—

“For the first marriage of the twice-born classes a woman of the same class is recommended, but for such as are impelled by inclination to marry again, women in the direct order of the classes are to be preferred.”—Manu, III. 12.

According to the Mitakshara,* a wife superseded by a second marriage on the part of her husband has a right to receive from him as much as is expended in jewels, ornaments, or the like, for the second wife, unless such property has already been bestowed on her, in which case she is entitled only to half.

Writers on Hindu Law enumerate eight species of marriage:—1st, the Brahma; 2nd, the Daiva; 3rd, the Arsha;

* Mit. II. 11. 35.

4th, the Prajapatya ; 5th, the Asura ; 6th, Gandharva ; 7th, the Rakshasa ; and 8th, the Paischa.

The first four forms are technically peculiar to Brahmins, and the fifth, the Asura, is peculiar to Vaisyas and Sudras.

The most dignified form of marriage is the Brahma. It, with the Daiva, Arsha, and Prajapatya, are nominally confined to Brahmins, and presumed to be based on entirely disinterested motives. *Manu thus describes a Brahma marriage:—

“The gift of a daughter, clothed only in a single robe to a man learned in the Veda, whom her father voluntarily invites and respectfully receives, is the nuptial rite called Brahma.”

Under the Asura form a pecuniary consideration is received by the father of the bride.

Sir Thomas Strange* doubts whether, in Southern India, any other form than the Asura be now observed. The Compiler has ascertained, from personal inquiry, that in the Deccan and 'Konkan the Brahma form is exclusively used among Brahmins, Prabhūs, and well-to-do Kunbis and other Sudras, although a secret payment is often made by the bridegroom to the bride's father. It has been said, in a very learned judgment of the Bombay High Court,† that the Asura form of marriage is prevalent among the Bhandaris of the Presidency. The Compiler is obliged to doubt whether this be strictly correct. He understands that the Hindu Bhandaris usually adopt the Brahma rite, and that the money payment to the bride's father has nothing to do with the ceremony, but is a private transaction.

* Strange, Hin. Law, II. 43.

† Vijia Ranjam et Al. v. Lazmon and Lazmi, VIII Bo. H. Ct. R. 244.

Among the lower castes of the Konkan and Deccan, the Warlis, Katkaris, Bhils, Chambars, Mhars, and the like, the parties' heads and hands are joined, the bridegroom presents his bride with a dress and ornaments, and there is much drinking and merrymaking.

The other marriages, as described by Manu, are as follows:—

The Daiva rite is when the father delivers his daughter, dressed in bridal attire, to the officiating priest at the time of sacrifice. The Arsha rite requires the bridegroom to deliver to the bride's father one or two pairs of cows, for uses prescribed by the Veda.

The nuptial rite termed Prajapatya is when the father gives away his daughter with due honour, saying distinctly, "May you both jointly perform your civil and religious duties."

The Gandarva marriage is a love match when the union is brought about by amorous desires, or by a wish for domestic comfort.

The rape, or carrying off of a virgin in time of war, is followed by Hindu Law by the marriage of the parties, and the marriage is called Rakshasa. This provision will remind the reader of the Law of God * under the Mosaic dispensation.

* Deuteronomy, ch. xxi. v. 10-14.

Adultery in India is punishable under the Penal Code* in the adulterer only, on the complaint of the injured husband.

Breach of promise of marriage does not entail any special consequences under Hindu Law. Parties occasionally resort to the Civil Courts to recover damages, as in England.

A wife's right of inheritance from her husband depends on her chastity. Adultery subjects her to degradation from caste, and, consequently, to loss of inheritance. By the theory only of Hindu Law, an unchaste wife's life is even forfeit to her injured husband, if the adulterer be of a lower caste.

Hindu Law, like the early codes of most nations, subjected the wife, among other members of a man's family, to corporal chastisement.

Manu † lays down thus: "A wife may be corrected, when she commits faults, with a rope, or the small shoot of a cane, but on the back part only, and not on a noble part by any means;" but another authority ‡ is more gallant: "Strike not, even with a blossom, a wife guilty of a hundred faults."

The Civil Law, and the English Law, gave a like permission.

The special property of women is called Stridhan (see note to Reg. v. Natha Kalian et Al., p. 44). Stridhan, a woman's peculium, is defined by Manu to be that which is given before the nuptial fire, at the bridal procession, or in token of love, or by a mother, brother, or father.

All the schools of Hindu Law appear to recognise these six primary divisions of Stridhan, not as a restriction of a greater number, but as a denial of a less.

Sir Thomas Strange,* principally on the authority of the Smriti Chandrika, elaborates the divisions to the number of twelve, thus:—

I. "What is given to a young woman, or to her husband in trust for her, at the time of her marriage, that is, during the space from the beginning to the close of the nuptial ceremony, commencing with the oblation for increase of prosperity, and ending with a return of the salutation; but not to be confined rigorously to the day, if given on account of the marriage. II. Her fee, or what is given to her in the bridal procession, upon the final ceremony, when the marriage, already contracted and solemnised, is about to be consummated, the bride having hitherto remained with her mother; as will appear in the next chapter. And the misery of Hindu marriages, at (on the part of the female) an immature, and often an inordinately disproportioned, age, is sensibly shown by the present in question being said to be intended as a bribe to induce her to repair the more cheerfully to the mansion of her lord. It may be here remarked of this domi-ductio, this bringing of the bride home, which, with the Hindus, is a consequence only of the antecedent contract, that, among the Romans, it was an ingredient wanting to its completion ; till when the bride was 'sponsa' only, becoming 'uxor, statim atque ducta est, quamvis nondum in cubiculum mariti venerit.' The fee of a Hindu wife has, moreover, this anomaly attending it, that upon her death it descends in a course of inheritance peculiar to itself. III. What is given to her on her arrival at her husband's house, when she makes prostration to her parents. IV. Gifts subsequent, by her parents or brothers. V. Upon her husband proposing to take another wife, the gratuity given by him to reconcile the first to the supersession, the measure of which seems not to be settled ; as will also be more particularly seen in the following chapter. VI. What a woman receives from the bridegroom on the marriage of her daughter. VII. What she owes at any time to the good graces of her husband ; as, for instance, a reward for performing well the business of the house in her department, called her perquisite. VIII. Anything given her at any time by any of her relations, being specially given ;—a description sufficiently general to comprehend gifts so made to her before marriage, while yet an unbetrothed member of her own family ; which are expressly included by various authorities. IX. The earnings of her industry, as by sewing, spinning, painting, and the like. Such are the instances of Stridhan specified in the Smriti Chandrika : upon the last of which it must be remarked that it does not occur in the enumeration given in the Mitakshara, any more than in Manu ; while Jimuta Vahana, with others, exclude it, observing that, though the proceeds be hers, they do not constitute 'woman's property,' and that her husband has a right to them, independent of distress. Yet it seems admitted that her heirs, and not his, succeed to them after her death, she having survived him; the reason for the doubt as to their constituting Stridhan being, that it is payment by strangers, not a gift from her husband, or any of her relations—a circumstance belonging to the description of the property in question. The same objection applies to X. What is given to a wife for sending, or to induce her to send, her husband to perform particular work; which by some is included, by others denied. XI. Property which a woman may have acquired by inheritance, purchase, or finding;—what has been inherited by her being so classed by Vijnāneswara, whose authority prevails in the Peninsula; while it is otherwise considered by the writers of the Eastern School. Lastly, XII. The savings of her maintenance. Dying, without leaving issue, the Stridhan of a married woman vests by descent in her husband, he surviving her."

* Strange, Hin. Law, 29.

On inheritance, or partition, that which a widow possesses as Stridhan is taken into account in assessing her share, if a share be assigned to her, which, including the "Stridhan," cannot be more than a son's share.

A widow is not, by Hindu Law, entitled to a distinct share; and in the Deccan and Konkan mere maintenance is usually given.

In allotting maintenance, property held by a widow as Stridhan is not to be taken into account.*

Property inherited after marriage by a wife from her own family is Stridhan.†

Property inherited by a widow from her son, i.e., from her husband, is not Stridhan.‡

By the rule of Hindu Law, which, however, is superseded by different local usages so as to render it unpractical, the Stridhan of a woman whose marriage has not been consummated, goes first to her uterine brothers, then to her mother, and then to her father, and, if a married woman, to her lineal descendants (if any) in the female line.

In default of female issue, the line of descent varies indefinitely in different places.

Among the Sudras and low castes, a form of marriage prevails, called "pāt" in the Deccan, and "mōhōtūr" in Guzerat, in the case of the remarriage of either the man or the woman. There is scarcely any difference§ between the legal status of a "pāt" wife and a "lagna" wife; both inherit legally, but the lagna position is the more honourable.

At present, cases of pāt marriages among Brahmins are not very uncommon.

CHAPTER III.

ADOPTION.

HINDUS believe that it is indispensably necessary, to the complete future beatitude of a man, that a son survive him for the performance of his funeral ceremonies, and for the payment of his debts, temporal and spiritual.

The Sanskrit for son is "pūtra," which Manu * derives thus:—"The son delivers his father from the hell named pūt; he, therefore, was called pūtra by Brahma himself."

When marriage failed in its most important object, that of producing a son, or where sons born, died before their sire, the ancient Hindu Law was prodigal in supplying for the want, and provided eleven kinds of sons, besides the son lawfully begotten in wedlock.

In the present age only two forms of adoption prevail, Dattaka, the son given, and Kritima, the son made. The latter obtains only under the Mithila School of Law in the province of Behar; the former, with which only we are concerned, is the universal custom throughout the rest of India.

* Inst. IX. 138.

Failing a son, a widow may perform the obsequies of her husband, or, in her default, a brother of the whole blood may do so; but, it appears, not with the same effect as a son.

Adoption by a sonless Hindu widow, however necessary, and, indeed, absolutely indispensable, to the future perfection of her husband and his ancestors, is a right, and not a duty to be enforced by the civil power.

Sir Thomas Strange says:—“No good Hindu lawyer sitting in the Courts in India would listen for a moment to an application to compel a childless Hindu to adopt, succession to his property being at all events provided for, whether he adopt or not.”

It is convenient briefly to consider the question of adoption under the four following heads:—

1. Who may adopt.
2. Who may be adopted.
3. The effect of adoption.
4. The mode of adoption.

1. Who may adopt.

Any married male Hindu of sound mind, who is destitute of male issue, may adopt, viz., one who has not a son, a son's son, or a son's son's son.† All the above stand as sons for the purpose of the performance of funeral rites. A daughter's son or a granddaughter's son is not competent. Only one adopted son can stand at one time, but an adopted son failing, successive adoptions are permitted.

* Strange, M. H. L. IV. 76.

† Manu, IX. 137.

A wife, or widow, may adopt, under authority given her by her husband ; but the adoption in either case is on the husband's account, and not on the wife's. However, the adoption having taken place, the adopted son becomes the son to both, and is capable of performing the funeral rites to both.*

It appears certain that, in Western India and Madras, the husband's consent to adoption by a widow, or the consent of his "Sapindas," is not absolutely necessary, although desirable. The character of the widow adopting would appear to be of value in determining the question of the validity of the adoption.†

One who has been adopted may himself adopt a son. A family may thus be kept up by a succession of adoptions to any extent. This accounts for the extreme antiquity of the Rajputra families, some of whom are said to trace back in an unbroken line to before the Christian era.

Adoption cannot be made during the pregnancy of a wife, as then prospect of male issue presents itself.

Unmarried men may not adopt, since they are not in danger of pūt ; and it is doubtful whether a widower ought to adopt, since he may remarry.

* Strange, M. H. L. 79.

† See pp. 85, 86 : Rakmabai v. Radhabai (5 Bo. H. Ct. R. 181) ; Collector of Madura v. Sremati Matū (2 Madras H. Ct. R. 206).

A man disqualified from inheritance may adopt, but cannot transmit inheritance.*

An outcaste may not adopt, he being incompetent to engage in any religious ceremony.† However, being free from the trammels of Hindu Law, he may effectually create an heir by testament.

2. Who may be adopted.

In the words of Mr. Sutherland,‡ “The first and fundamental principle is, that the person proposed to be adopted be one who, by a legal marriage with his mother, might have been the legitimate son of the adopter. By the operation of this rule a sister’s son, and offspring of any other female whom the adopter could not have espoused, and one of a different class are excluded from adoption. In the present age, marriage with one unequal in class is prohibited.” A widow proceeding to adopt, with the sanction of her husband or kindred, ought not to select one with whose father she could not have legally married.§ But this restriction applies to the three superior castes only, not to Sudras.

Proximity of kindred ought to determine the choice of an adopted son, the right of a whole brother’s son to be adopted in preference to any other person being a received rule of law.

* Suth. Syn. H. 1, 2.

† Manu, XI. 185.

‡ Suth. Syn. H. II. 1, 2.

§ Datt. Mim. II. 33, 34.

The Mitakshara, the paramount authority on inheritance in Benares, Madras, and Western India (except in Guzerat and the Island of Bombay), lays down the following ruling :—

“‘If among several brothers of the whole blood, one have a son born, Manu pronounces them all fathers of male issue by means of that son.’ This is intended to forbid the adoption of others, if a brother’s son can possibly be adopted. It is not intended to declare him son to his uncle, for that is inconsistent with the subsequent text.”

Nanda Pandita, in the Dattaka Mimansa, extends the principle that proximity of kindred ought to determine the choice of an adopted son elaborately ; but it cannot be regarded as a rigid maxim of law vitiating the adoption of a remote relative, or of a stranger when near kinsmen are available.*

Whether an only son can be adopted, is a moot point.

The Madras High Court (Scotland, C.J., and Frere, J.) has distinctly held that the adoption of an only son is, when made, valid according to Hindu Law. The prohibition to adopt an eldest or an only son was held to be directory only, and that an adoption of either, however blameable the giver, would, to every legal purpose, be good, the rule of “factum valet quod fieri non debet” being held to prevail in no code more than in that of the Hindus.

The Bombay High Court, in Murbalkar v. Ranadive,†

* Suth. Syn. H. II. 3.

† IV Bo. H. Ct. R. 190 ; Warden, Gibbs, JJ.

held that an only son should not be given in adoption ; but that if such adoption has taken place, it cannot be set aside.

There is an obiter dictum to the same effect by the late Chief Justice Sausse, in Mhalsabai v. Gulve.*

The Bengal High Court (L. Jackson, and Mitter, JJ.) has ruled to the contrary in Raja Upendra v. Srimati Rani.† The following words of Mr. Justice Mitter will not bear abridgment:—

“That the adoption of an only son is prohibited by the Hindu Shastras is beyond all controversy. The two leading authorities on the subject, namely, the Dattaka Mimansa and the Dattaka Chandrika, are unanimous in declaring that such an adoption should never be made.

“By no man having an only son (eka-pūtra) is the gift of a son to be ever made.

“He who has an only son, or one having an only son, the gift of that son must never be made. For as Vasishtha declares, ‘An only son let no man give.’ Therefore, a prohibition against acceptance is established by the text in question. Accordingly, Vasishtha says, ‘Let no man give or accept,’ &c.

“To this he subjoins a reason: ‘For he is destined to continue the line of his ancestors.’ His being intended for lineage being thus ordained, in the gift of an only son, the offence of extinction of lineage is implied. Now, this is incurred by the giver, and the receiver also.

* VII Bo. H. Ct. R. 26.

† I B. L. R. 221.

“By no man having an only son is the gift of a son ever to be made.

“The passages cited above are sufficient to show that the adoption of an only son is forbidden by the Hindu law. It has been said that the prohibition contained in these passages amounts to nothing more than a mere religious injunction, and that the violation of such an injunction cannot invalidate the adoption after it has once taken place. We are of opinion that this contention is not sound. It is to be remembered that the institution of adoption, as it exists among the Hindus, is essentially a religious institution. It originated chiefly, if not wholly, from motives of religion; and an act of adoption is, to all intents and purposes, a religious act, but one of such a nature that its religious and temporal aspects are wholly inseparable. ‘By a man destitute of male issue only,’ says Manu, ‘must the substitute for a son of some one description always be anxiously adopted, for the sake of the funeral cake, water, and solemn rites.’ It is clear, therefore, that the subject of adoption is inseparable from the Hindu religion itself, and all distinction between religious and legal injunctions must be necessarily inapplicable to it. Suppose, for instance, that a son has been adopted by a childless widow without the permission of her husband, the prohibition against such an adoption is contained in the following passage:—

“‘Let not a woman either give or receive a son in adoption, unless with the assent of her husband.’ Can it be said that such an adoption would be valid in law ? It will be observed that the language employed in the preceding text is precisely similar to that employed in the text prohibiting the adoption of an only son ; and it would be difficult to suggest a reason why an adoption invalidated in the one case for temporal purposes, upon considerations arising out of the religious view of the matter, should not be equally invalidated in the other case upon similar grounds. One of the essential requisites of a valid adoption is that the gift should be made by a competent person, and the Hindu law distinctly says that the father of an only son has no such absolute dominion over that son as to make him the subject of a sale or gift. Such a gift, therefore, would be as much invalid as a gift made by the mother of the child without the consent of the father. It is to be borne in mind that the prohibition in question is applicable to the giver as well as to the receiver, and both parties are threatened with the offence of 'extinction of lineage,' in case of violation. Now, the perpetuation of lineage is the chief object of adoption under the Hindu Law ; and if the adoptive father incurs the offence of 'extinction of lineage,' by adopting a child who is the only son of his father, the object of the adoption necessarily fails. It is true that the doctrine of factum valet is, to a certain extent, recognised by the lawyers of the Bengal School ; but if we were to extend the application of this doctrine to the law of adoption, every adoption, when it has once taken place, will be, as a matter of course, good and valid, however grossly the injunctions of the Hindu Shastras might have been violated by the parties concerned in it. The case of Chinna Gaundan v. Kumara Gaundan * is, no doubt, in favour of the appellant; but, for the reasons stated above, we are unable to concur with the learned judges who decided that case. On the other hand, we find two cases in our Presidency which are directly in favour of the view we have taken, and, what is of still greater importance, both these cases have been cited with approbation by Sir William Macnaghten himself. The first case is reported in page 178, volume II, of his work on the Hindu Law, and the second is to be found in page 179 of the same volume. We may also observe that the learned translator of the Dattaka Chandrika and the Dattaka Mimansa is of the same opinion."

It may safely be considered as certain that the adoption of an only or eldest son is improper, but as doubtful whether, when done, it be invalid.

There is a widespread prejudice against the adoption of a youngest son; but the objection thereto is sentimental rather than legal.

An orphan cannot be adopted, there being no one to give him, which is of the essence of Dattaka.

It is proper that adoption should take place when the adopted son is less than five years old; but there is no limit of age prescribed by Hindu Law as barring a right to be adopted.

Hinduism implies a certainty of a future state, and the doctrine that sin is so inherent in one's nature as to render requisite, specific means of expiation.

It institutes a series of ceremonies, commencing previous to conception, which, united, produce to the Brahmin, Kshatrija, and Vaisya, regeneration.

It is by the performance of these, or of some of these, in the home of the adopting father that filiation is effectually sealed; therefore the fewer of them that have been performed in the family of the adopted the better. It is considered very desirable that two ceremonies at least, tonsure and cord investiture, should be performed in the adopter's family,

As a matter of law, adoption is restricted to no particular age, and it is not barred by the pre-performance of any ceremonies, since they may be annulled by a sacrifice of fire,* known as "pūtreṣṭi."

Marriage is a bar to adoption, not being capable of annulment when the adopted is not a gōtraja sapinda.

The person adopted must be of the adopter's caste.

3.—The Effect of Adoption.

An adopted son is considered in all respects as a begotten son. He is the heir to his adoptive father, and inherits property descended to the latter from his father or brothers. He cannot, after being adopted, claim the family or estate of his natural father, which follow the funeral oblations; he becomes connected both lineally and collaterally with the family into which he has been adopted.†

* Strange, M. H. L. 91.

† Manu, IX. 42; Datt. Chand. II. 19.

The adopted son is in exactly the position of the son naturally born in the family, plus only, that he is restricted from intermarrying with any girl of either his natural or adoptive families within the prohibited degrees; and his descendants are under a similar restriction in regard to the natural family until the third generation, namely, so long as remembrance may continue of the adoption.

If, after the adoption of a son, a son be legally begotten and born in marriage, the latter will take four-fifths and the adopted son one-fifth of the father's property.*

When a son has been adopted, the widow of the adopter has only a life interest in the family estate, her Stridhan † of course excepted, the adopted son being both manager and heir. Should they separate, the widow and adoptee take equal shares.

A valid adoption once made cannot on any account be cancelled.

4.—The Modes of Adoption.

There are five principal forms in adoption by Dattaka—

- (1.) The giving away and reception, with the ceremony of pouring water on the hands of the adopter.
- (2.) The placing the adopted son on the adopter's lap, the latter breathing on his head.
- (3.) The fire-sacrifice, Hôm.
- (4.) The revolution of a lamp, or the worship of an idol.
- (5.) Gift of alms to Brahmins.

* Mitak. I. xi. 24; Steele's Castes, 44; I Madras H. Ct. R. 45.

† See page 11.

Such ceremonies as require the pronunciation of verses (Mantras) from the Vedas cannot be performed by Sudras, or by women of any caste.

The most important of these ceremonies, in the estimation of Hindus, is the (3) Hôm sacrifice; but nothing is essential to the legal finality of adoption but a giving and receiving of a proper child by proper parties. A lawful adoption is not to be set aside for any informality that may have attended its solemnisation.*

* Strange, M. H. L. 97.

CHAPTER IV.

PARTITION.

PARTITION is too wide and complex a branch of Hindu Law to treat of with any attempt at completeness in this elementary sketch.

It is proposed to state only the general law of partition where the Mitakshara and Vyavahara Mayūkhū are the governing authorities, and then to point out briefly how other Schools of Law vary on the subject.

Partition is defined in the Mitakshara * to be the adjustment of divers rights regarding the whole, by distributing them in particular portions of the aggregate. Narada says that when a division of family estate is instituted by the kindred, "that becomes a topic of litigation, called by the wise, partition of heritage" (vibhāga).

Firstly, then, as to the periods of partition.

According to the Mitakshara, there are four periods of partition, as follows; but in the Bombay Presidency partition practically now takes place only at the decease of the father, or head of the family:—

1stly. At the option of the father, or head of the family.

* Mit. ch. I. 1, 4.

2ndly. At the option of the sons (or grandsons) during the life of the father, when the mother is past child-bearing, and the father is undesirous of sexual intercourse, but does not wish for partition.

3rdly. While the mother is yet capable of bearing issue, and the father, though not consenting to partition, is old, or addicted to vicious courses, or afflicted with incurable disease, leprosy, or the like.

4thly. At, or after, the decease of the father, or head of the family.

The Vyavahara Mayūkhū omits, but does not deny, the third period of possible partition.

So intimate, by Hindu Law,* is the connection between partition in the lifetime of the head of the family and inheritance upon his death, that they may be said to blend; but there exists a discretion as to partition which is not found in the rule governing inheritance.

On partition, a head of a family may allot his self-acquired property as he wishes; but he has, according to the Mitakshara, and to the custom of Western and Southern India, no power to regulate its succession.

Property vests jointly in heirs of parallel grade, sons having equal right with their father in respect to ancestral property, and failing sons, their sons and son's sons. The right of absentees survives until the seventh generation.†

* Strange, Hin. Law, ch. VI. 122.

† Strange, Hin. Law, ch. IX. 188; Law Rep. In. App. I. 1; Dary Singh v. Devi Singh.

The heirs in natural co-parcenary are the father and his sons, son's sons, and son's grandsons, brothers and their sons, son's sons, and son's grandsons, male cousins in the male line; widows, daughters, daughter's sons, and daughter's daughters in the female line.

Sons, brothers, and daughters, when taking from the father, take equally per capita, and the others per stirpes, according to the share of the person from whom they inherit.

After partition there may be a reunion, and a subsequent partition. This can only be effected by fathers and sons, brothers and paternal uncles and nephews.

More distant relations, that is to say, those who were not parties to the partition, may live together, having goods in common, but cannot return to the position of an undivided Hindu family.

Reunion after partition is very unusual; it is not mentioned in any reported case within the Compiler's knowledge; and the Compiler has never heard of a single instance of its occurrence.

Certain kinds of property are absolutely excluded from partition. The following list of things impartible is put forth as only approximately correct:—

1. Lands endowed for religious uses. The management, however, of such lands may be divisible.
2. Regalities and principalities; but the private estate of kings and princes is partible.
3. Lands granted for the good of a family, such as Ināms, Jahāgirs, Saramjāms.

4. Estates held under Government renewable to the eldest son.

5. Self-acquired property gained solely by a man's own ability and at his own charges. Gains of science acquired at the family expense, and while the acquirer is receiving a family maintenance, are partible.*

6. Nuptial gifts received by the bridegroom with the bride, albeit coming out of the joint property. Katayana † says of such gifts: "What is received by a damsel equal in class at the time of accepting her in marriage, let a man consider as wealth received with the maiden; it is deemed pure, and promotes increase of prosperity."

7. Clothes and ornaments habitually worn by either male or female members of the family. Clothes of special value, court dresses, and the like, worn only on particular occasions, are partible.

8. House, or garden, made by one son for himself, water-pots, ornaments, utensils for food, and the like.‡

9. A gift from a friend, not given in return for a former gift taken from the common stock.§

10. Wealth, or rewards, gained by valour, Manu lays down: "Whatever is then received as a reward shall be considered as wealth gained by valour; that, and what is taken under the standard, are declared not to be partible."

* VI Bo. H. Ct. R. 1; Bai Mancha v. Narotamdas. See p. 59.

† Manu, ch. IX. 206; Vyavahara Mayūkhā, ch. IV. 7; Col. Dig. 463.

‡ Col. Dig. 468.

§ 1b. 450.

When the fact of partition is disputed, the presumption is that the family are united until the contrary be proved, the natural condition of a Hindu family being union.

Proof of partition, when disputed, is generally very difficult, since a family may be separated as to residence, meals, and ceremonies so as to seem to their neighbours to be divided, remaining united in interest.

On the other hand, having parted property, they may continue to live and eat together, and so seem to be united.

Narada * says: "If a question arise among co-heirs in regard to the fact of partition, it must be ascertained by the evidence of kinsmen, by the record of the distribution, or by separate transaction of affairs."

The separate exercise of religious duties is another and satisfactory proof of partition, as is also the parties being surety for, or bestowing gifts on, each other.†

Partition of the produce of land, without partition of the land, does not make a family divided.

A person ‡ dying during the pendency of a suit for partition is held to be undivided.

The joint performance of obsequies is not, in the face of evidence to the contrary, proof of union of estate.

By the Bengal Law a father may alienate a small portion of ancestral immoveable property at pleasure. Ac-ording to the text of the Dāyabhāga,* “The prohibition is not against a donation, or other transfer, of a small part not incompatible with the support of the family.” This is opposed to the practice in Western and Southern India and to the Mitakshara.†

Again,‡ in Bengal, sons have not ownership in their father’s ancestral property until after his demise, and they cannot, as under the Mitakshara, force partition on their fathers.

The Mitakshara § Law gives equal shares to fathers and sons, whereas, by the Dāyabhāga,|| the father takes a double share.

By the Malabar Law, partition can only be effected by mutual consent; the property would be divided primarily according to the number of the sisters of the common ancestor, these giving rise to the branches, and afterwards among their progeny.¶

CHAPTER V.

SUCCESSION.

THE normal condition of a Hindu family is that of union of estate. Therefore, when a member of an undivided family dies, his share merges in the common fund, but, on partition, would follow the rule for succession to divided property elsewhere than in Bengal, where an exception is made in favour of a childless widow, who takes as heir of her husband, to the exclusion of the coparceners.

Succession to a Hindu of divided estate, however, differs in various parts of India, but is everywhere based on the ability of the successors to perform the funeral rites of the deceased.

The following tables set out the order of succession in Bengal, Bombay, and Madras :—

Madras.

The Madras rule of inheritance appears to be generally the same as that of Bombay; but as the Vyavahara Mayūkhū is not an authority in Madras, sisters take no place in the list of heirs in any part of the Presidency.*

In Malabar and Canara an exceptional rule prevails, known as Marūmakatāyām, or nepotism, in the female line. The origin of this custom, according to Mr. Justice Strange, is thus:—

It is alleged that Parasūramān, the first King of Malabar, introduced Brahmins into the district, and gave them estates, and, to prevent the properties being split up, decreed that they should vest in the elder brothers, who alone be allowed to marry. The sons of these were to be accounted as the sons of the whole family. The junior brothers being without wives, were permitted to consort with women of the lower castes. The illegitimate offspring of these unions could not rank as Brahmins, or inherit from their fathers. Their inheritance was hence made to follow from their mothers. The lower castes fell into the same system of promiscuous intercourse among themselves. With them, the females before puberty go through a form of marriage, the bridegroom not necessarily taking the position of husband. After maturity, they consort promiscuously with men of their own, or of a higher caste.

* But see p. 43.

Parentage not being traceable in the male line, the offspring succeed to the estate in their mother's family.

In North Malabar, the Moplas, albeit Mahomedans, follow the rule of Marūmakatāyām.

Everywhere, after the nearer kindred, the Sapindas, Samanodokas, and Bandhus inherit in order.

Sapindas are the male members of the deceased's family within six degrees, downwards and upwards.

The term Sapinda is derived from Pinda, the funeral rice-ball, and it is descriptive of those who participate in offering it and water to the manes of the deceased.

Samanodokas are the male relations within thirteen degrees. The name is derived from Udak, water, which alone they offer at the obsequies.

Bandhu signifies remote cognate kindred. They, as Bandhus, make no offering; but in failure of Sapindas, the Samanodokas act as Sapindas, and, in failure of both, the Bandhus offer both the rice-ball and water.

Everywhere, among daughters, the unmarried take first, After them the more necessitous take; comparative poverty being the only criterion for settling the claims of daughters to their father's estate in the Bombay Presidency (vide post, page 62).*

In Bengal, daughters having male issue, or likely to have male issue, and widowed daughters with male issue, take jointly (Dāyabhāga, Chapter XI. Section VI. recapitulation; Vyavahara Mayhūkū, Chapter IV. Section VIII. 10, 11.)

* Lazmibar v. Tairam, VI Bo. H. C. R. 152.

Among mendicants, devotees, and ascetics property is transmissible among themselves (Mitakshara, Chapter II. Section VIII.).

The property of a dancing girl goes first to her female issue, then to her male issue, and, in failure of issue, to the troupe to which she is attached.

In default of any relative, the estate, by the theory of Hindu Law, goes to learned and venerable Brahmins; but it has been ruled by the Court of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council that it escheats to the Crown.*

Probably the reason of this ruling is the practical impossibility of deciding what Brahmins would be entitled to such property.

The following classes are disqualified from inheriting :—

1. The impotent.
2. The born blind.
3. The born deaf.
4. The lame.
5. The born dumb.
6. Those defective of any organ.
7. Recluses.
8. Idiots.
9. The insane.
10. Illegitimate children of Brahmins, Kshatriyas, and Vaisyas.
11. Those at enmity with their parents.

* Collector of Masulipatam v. Cavalry Narainapa, VIII Moore, P. C. R. 500.

12. Outcastes.
13. Vicious persons.
14. Adulteresses.
15. Incontinent widows.

Wills are unknown to Hindu Law. No term exists in the Dharma Shashtra for such an instrument as a will. Wills have, however, of late years, been freely used by Hindus albeit that they are unnecessary, since Hindu Law rigidly provides (as has been seen) for the descent of property to the remotest kindred, and eventually for escheat, and also arranges for the maintenance of members of a family having claim to support.

Wills are, therefore, given effect by the Courts, so far, and so far only, as they are conformable to the principles of Hindu Law, with the difference, that in parts of India (Mithila, Bombay, Southern India) where possession is a necessary condition to a gift, it is not necessary to the validity of a bequest by will.*

AN EPITOME
OF HINDU LAW CASES.

NAVALRAM ATMARAM v. NANDKISHOR SHIO
NARAYAN'S HEIRS.

(I Bombay H. Ct. 209. Special Appeal No. 633 of 1864.)

ON appeal from the Senior Assistant Judge of Broach.

Question, whether by Hindu Law property acquired by a woman by inheritance is Stridhan. Decided (Arnold, C.J., Forbes and Warden, JJ., per Forbes, J.) that immoveable property inherited by a woman is Stridhan, and does not pass by "the melancholy succession" to her father's heirs; that Sir F. Macnaghten is of more authority in the Bengal than in the Bombay Presidency; and that, according to the usage of the Shrimali Brahmins of Guzerat, in default of direct male heirs, a daughter's daughter inherits immoveable estate to the exclusion of the grandfather's heirs. Vijia Ranjam v. Laemon (Appeal No. 175 of 1870), on the original side of the Bombay H. Ct. (Westropp, C.J., West, J.) affirms this ruling, in a dictum of Mr. Justice West to the effect that both the Mitakshara and Mayūkhū (the paramount authorities on Hindu Law in this Presidency) class as Stridhan, all property acquired by a woman by inheritance. This ruling was followed in Narsapa Lingapa v. Sakharam Krishna (6 Bombay H. Ct. R. 215), vide p. 63.

Note.—The student is recommended to read carefully the whole report of Vijia Ranjam v. Laamon, since it is impossible here to condense Mr. Justice West's important and exhaustive judgment.

The next case shows that the Hindu Law on this point in the Madras Presidency differs, or is differently interpreted, from that in force in Bombay.

SENGAMALATHAMMAL v. VALAYNDA MUDALI.

(III Madras H. Ct. R. 312.)

Issue, whether by Hindu Law property acquired by a woman by inheritance is Stridhan.

Decided (Bittleston, C.J., and Ellis, J.) that the general Hindu Law is, that among co-heirs the survivor takes. Sir F. Macnaghten's case noticed, of three sisters succeeding jointly to their father's estate, and dying childless. On the death of one, the two others would succeed to her share in equal proportions; and on the death of one of these, the survivor would take a life interest on the whole estate.

Note.—It is not, however, clear how the three sisters in Macnaghten's case succeeded to the estate of their father.

See Introductory Chapter on Succession, p. 37.

REGINA v. NATHA KALIAN and BAI LAKHI.(VIII Bombay H. Ct. C. C. 11.)

Decided (Gibbs and Melvill, JJ.) that the removal of palla or Stridhan from a husband by a wife and others does not constitute the offence of theft.

Note on the last three Cases.—Stridhan, woman's property, derived from stri, female, and dhan, wealth. It may be money, but is more usually jewels or other ornaments. It must be the gift or bequest of a husband or near relative. Property given by a stranger, or earned by a married woman herself, vests in her husband. Stridhan is always understood of a wife, or of a widow, since unmarried adult females are almost unknown among Hindus (Dāyabhāga, c. 4, s. 1).

The commentator Vijnānesvara (Mitakshara, c. 2, s. 11) says: "The enumeration of six sorts of women's property by Manu ('What was given before the nuptial fire, what was presented in the bridal procession, what has been bestowed in token of affection or respect, and what has been received by a woman from her brother, her mother, or her father, are denominated the six-fold property of a woman,') is intended not as a restriction of a greater number, but as a denial of a less."

DHONDU HARI (Heir of Jaganath) v. KRISHNARAO et Al.

(I Bombay H. Ct. 47).

Hari sued as heir of Dhondu, deceased, to recover Rs.2,890 3A. 0P. principal and interest on a bond for Rs.1,500, which had been passed by the father of the defendant to the plaintiff's father.

The Moonsiff, and, on appeal, the District Judge of Poona (Loughnan, J.) awarded only so much as, together with interest already paid, made up Rs.3,000, or double the amount of the principal sum.

The High Court (Sausse, C.J., Forbes and Newton, JJ.), per Sausse, C.J., laid down, overruling former decisions of the Sadar Diwani Adalat, that "the rule of Hindu Law is that no greater arrear of interest can be received than will amount to the principal sum; but if the principal remain outstanding, and the interest be paid in smaller sums than the amount of the principal money, there is no limit to the amount of interest which may be thus recovered from time to time."

The Court referred to the Vyavahara Mayūkhū (V. i. 6, 7), where Nīlkantha, quoting Manu, says: "Interest on money received at once, not month by month, or day by day as it ought, must never be more than enough to double the debt that is, more than the amount of the principal paid at the same time."

Note.—It is submitted that this doctrine is equitable, serving the vigilant, and accordant with the maxim, "Vigilantibus, non dormientibus, jura subveniunt." Thus, negligence of a creditor can never subject a debtor to the shock of a claim for interest greater in amount than the principal sum; but payments obtained beforehand by the vigilance of the creditor are excluded from calculation. A creditor shall not find the law on his side in lulling a debtor into fancied security, in view of thoroughly ruining him at an opportune moment by selling his estate under a Court's decree, a mode of sale notoriously subject to the influence of combination, and unfavourable to the realization of fair value.

It is difficult to give the reason for this rule of law more exactly than by pointing to its general equity and convenience. Yet it is very certain that the Hindu jurists had other and more particular reasons, probably inapplicable to the present state of society, the tendency of which is to disuse exchange in kind, and to reduce all liabilities to a money valuation, for fixing the increment recoverable at one time on money, gems, and the precious metals at equal to the principal, while double the principal value might be recovered on inferior metals, treble on grain, fourfold on cotton and seeds, and septuple on spirits, molasses, salt, flowers, and fruit. Perhaps the proportion increases relatively to the risk incurred as to the quality and durability of the articles returned.

That the rule of damdupat also applies to mortgage transactions, was ruled by Westropp, C.J., and West, J., in Narayan and Others v. Satwaji and Others (IX Bombay H. Ct. 83).

KYLASH et AL. v. DEEN PARAMANIK

(Cal. W. R., XXIV. 106.)

Since the last case and note have been in type, it has been ruled by the Bengal High Court (Jackson and Macdonell, JJ.) that the rule of Hindu Law that more interest than the principal cannot be recovered still obtains in the case of Hindus in the Presidency town there, within the civil original jurisdiction of the High Court, but is not applicable to Courts in the Mofussil, which are governed by the provisions of Act VI. of 1871, section 24, whereby the administration of Mahomedan and Hindu Law is restricted to matters of succession, inheritance, marriage, caste, or any religious usage or institution.

Note.—Act VI. of 1871, albeit a Statute of the Council of the Governor-General, is restricted to the Presidency of Bengal, and does not affect Courts other than those of that Presidency.

The effect of this ruling therefore is that the "damdupat" limit does not exist in the Bengal Presidency, except within the limits of the local original jurisdiction of the Bengal High Court.

JAMYATRAM v. PARBUDAS.

Here one Ranchod Harji was indebted to the plaintiff, and died, leaving land which devolved on his brother and heir, Naran Harji, who sold it to the defendant for a good consideration, by a deed dated 1859 A.D., and registered in 1862 A.D.

In 1860 plaintiff obtained a decree against Naran Harji for the amount due, the land was sold under that decree to plaintiff in March, 1864 A.D., and a certificate of sale was granted to him.

In March, 1865 A.D., plaintiff sued the defendant for the land, and obtained a decree from the Subordinate Judge. On regular appeal the District Judge of Surat (Kemball, J.) differed from the Subordinate Judge's opinion that Naran Harji was not competent to sell the land as discharged from Ranchod Harji's lien, and found that the sale to the defendant in 1859 A.D. was bonâ fide.

The point argued before the High Court on special appeal (Westropp, C.J., Gibbs, and Lloyd, JJ.) was the question of the validity of a bonâ fide sale made by the heir of a deceased Hindu debtor. The Court, per Westropp, C.J., followed the ruling of the Bengal High Court in Anopûma v. Ganga Narain (2 Cal. W. R. 296), with a qualification, and held that, under Hindu Law, the property of a deceased Hindu is not so hypothecated for his debts as to prevent his heir from disposing of it to a third party, or to allow the creditor to follow it into a hand of a purchaser bonâ fide, and for good consideration; but that the creditor may hold the heir personally liable for the debt if the property alienated would have been sufficient to pay the debt; if not, only to the value of the property which he received.

NATCHIAR v. AMAUL. (The Urcand Case.)

(Madras Select Decrees, 485.)

When a male coparcener dies, the remaining male coparceners continue to administer and enjoy the undivided property as though no death had happened, and this as long as they remain in union.

Note.—This is a fundamental principle of the Hindu Law of Inheritance. The Urcand Case (1821 A.D.) is selected to illustrate it as the oldest within the Compiler's knowledge.

Daughters, until married, are entitled to maintenance, such maintenance being, under the Mithila, and apparently the Madras, rule, a charge only on the inheritance. See the Bombay case, Udaram v. Soukabai, post, p. 74.

VINAYAK JOG v. GOVINDRAO JOG.(VI Bombay H. Ct. 224.)

Decided (Couch, C.J., Melvill, J.) that Hindu Law does not require signature as necessary to the validity of a Will; that adoption by a widow, on verbal instructions from her husband, would invalidate a Will, but that if the Will contain ample and liberal provision for the maintenance of the son to be adopted, the Will will stand.

MEGRAJ JAGANATH v. GOKALDAS MATHURIDAS.

(VII Bombay H. Ct. 137.)

On appeal from Sargent, J., the Court (Westropp, C.J., Green, J.) decided that in order to charge the indorser of a dishonoured hundi, Hindu Law requires reasonable, not immediate, notice of dishonour, and held that a demand for a duplicate of the hundi was not equivalent to notice of dishonour.

Note.—The Hindu Law as to hundis therefore differs from the English Law of Bills of Exchange, in being less strict as to notice of dishonour; reasonable notice only, not immediate notice, being required. (See also Gopal Das v. Sayad Ali, 3 Beng. L. R. 198; and Gillard v. Wise, 5 Beav. 134.)

UJI WOMAN v. HATTU LALU.

(VII Bombay H. Ct. 133. Special Appeal No. 405 of 1870.)

This was an appeal from the Judge of Ahmedabad (F. D. Melvill, J.), who confirmed the decree of the Subordinate Judge. The plaintiff sued his wife, Uji, for restitution of conjugal rights, and the defence was that the plaintiff had divorced his wife, and that the custom of their caste (Mochi) allowed a natra marriage with a woman having a husband alive on the payment of a sum of money to the caste. The Subordinate Judge and the District Judge found (1) that there had been no divorce; and (2) that the custom alleged, if proved, is invalid, on account of immorality. The High Court (Lloyd and Kemball, JJ.) affirmed the decision of the Lower Courts, and held the alleged custom to be void, because immoral.

KASHIRAV v. BHODU.

(VII Bombay H. Ct. 17. Referred Case.)

Case referred by the District Judge of Khandesh (Hobart, J.) Decided (Couch, C.J., Gibbs, J.) that in a suit between Hindus beyond the limits of the Presidency town, damages may be recovered for mere verbal abuse which has not caused special damage to the plaintiff.

Note.—So the following Bengal cases :—Taki v. Koshdil Biswas (6 C. W. R. 151); Gourchandar v. Clay (8 C. W. R. 256); Gulam Husain v. Govind Das (1 C. W. R. 19).

DAVLATRAM v. BULAKIDAS.

(VI Bombay H. Ct. 24. Original Suit No. 553 of 1868.)

Decided (Arnold, J.) that by Hindu Law Merchant, where a hundi (bill of exchange), drawn payable to holder, is paid at maturity by the drawee to the holder, and such hundi is found to be a forgery, the holder, albeit holding bonâ fide for value, is bound to repay principal and interest to the drawee, if the discovery or communication to the holder of the fact of the forgery has not been delayed by the drawee's laches or negligence.

RAINIA (Widow) v. BHAGI (Widow).

(Bombay H. Ct. 66. Original Jurisdiction.)

A Hindu died intestate and childless, leaving two widows, Rainia, the elder, and Bhagi, the junior. Held (Arnold and Couch JJ.), that they succeed equally, and that the ordinary course would have been to grant a joint administration; but there being a well-grounded suspicion, short of absolute proof, that Rainia had been incontinent, the Court, by consent, ordered the Administrator-General to administer to the estate.

Arnold, J., said that if the parties had not consented, the Court would have been driven to grant a joint administration.

Note.—It would appear from this ruling that nothing less than positive proof of the incontinence of one widow is sufficient to justify the withholding of a grant of joint administration. The Mayākhā, however, which is of concurrent but subordinate authority with the Mitākshara in Western India generally, except in Guzerat and the island of Bombay, lays down, “That even a suspicion of incontinence is enough to reduce a widow’s rights to that of mere maintenance.” See Introductory Chapters, p. 3.

VALABRAHAM v. BAI HARIGANGA.

(Bombay H. Ct., IV. 135. Special Appeal No. 307 of 1867.)

Decided (Gibbs and Warden, JJ.), per Gibbs, J., that dumbness from birth is a cause of disherison in females as well as males, and that by the Mitakshara, the text-book or paramount authority in Western India, a Hindu widow born dumb cannot inherit from her husband, but is entitled only to her "Stridhan," and to maintenance from her deceased husband's estate, the reason being that Hindu Jurists attribute dumbness from birth to original sin, i.e. to sin committed in a former state.

Note.—A male born dumb is also incompetent to inherit. The reader is recommended to study Mr. Justice Gibbs' learned judgment in this case.

GANE BHIVE et Al. v. KANE BHIVE et Al.

(IV Bombay H. Ct. R. 169. Special Appeal No. 389 of 1867.)

Decided (Couch, C.J., Newton, J.), per Couch, C.J., that in a suit for the partition of a family estate the onus probandi is on the party asserting that any portion is separate property.

Note.—See Prankisan v. Mothuromohan (10 Moore's I. A. 403), in which it is laid down by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council that the presumption of Hindu Law is, that property not shown to be separate is joint. See also the next case.

BAI MANCHA v. NAROTAMDAS.

(VI Bombay H. Ct. 1. Special Appeal No. 366 of 1868.)

Decided (confirming the decree of Kemball, J., Surat) by Couch, C.J., and Newton, J., that in an undivided Hindu family, the burden of showing that certain property is self-acquired and impartible is on the person so asserting, and that scientific or professional gains, such as from the profession of advocacy, the education thereto having been acquired at the family expense, are liable to partition.

Note.—The reader is referred to Mr. Justice Holloway's judgment in Chala Konda Alasain v. Chala Konda Ratnachalam et Al. (2 M. H. C. R. 56) for a full review of the law on this subject.

VITHOBA BAVA v. HARIBA BAVA.

(VI Bombay H. Ct. 54. Special Appeal No. 624 of 1868.)

Decided (Couch, C.J., Warden, J.), that, according to Hindu Law, if one build a house on ancestral land with separate funds of his own, the other members of the family have only a claim on him for other similar land equal to their respective shares.

LAXMIBAI v. JAYRAM HARI et Al.

(VI Bombay H. Ct. 152. Special Appeal No. 226 of 1869.)

Decided (Lloyd and Melvill, JJ.), per Melvill, J., that by a logical interpretation of the Mitakshara, the text-book of paramount authority in Western India, the wives of all gotraja Sapindas and Samanodakas must be held to have rights of inheritance co-extensive with those of their husbands.

Dictum, per Melvill, J., that the rule laid down in Grady on Hindu Law, p. 228, that the wife, daughters, and daughters' sons, the mother, and the paternal grandmother are embraced among Sapindas, and that the female line extends no further, correctly describes the doctrine of the Bengal and Madras Schools.

Note.—Gotraja Sapindas are all the males of the deceased's family related to him, within six degrees downwards and upwards.

Gotraja Samanodakas are all the male descendants, ascendants, and collaterals, within thirteen degrees (West and Buhler, Hindu Law, liii, liv).

See 14 Sutherland, P. C. R. 1.

. POLI (Widow) v. NAROTAM and LALA.

(VI Bombay H. Ct. 183. Special Appeal No. 298 of 1869.)

Decided (Couch, C.J., Melvill, J.) that in Western India, among daughters, having male issue does not determine the right to inherit. Comparative poverty is the only criterion for settling the claims of the daughters among themselves. An (nirdhan) unendowed daughter has preference over an (sadhan) endowed daughter. The Court followed the decision in Bakubai v. Manchurbai (II Bombay H. Ct. R. 5), that the test of sonship is not applicable in Western India, and must be disregarded, and that among daughters, succession to their father's estate must be regulated by their comparative endowment or unendowment.

Note.—It appears to be otherwise where the Dāyabhāga is the paramount authority on Inheritance.

See Dāyabhāga, Chap. XI. Sect. 6. Recapitulation by Śrīkrishna Tarkalankara.

NARSAPA LINGAPA v. SAKHARAM KRISHNA.

(VI Bombay H. Ct. R. 215. Special Appeal No. 146 of 1869.)

Decided (Gibbs and Melvill, JJ.), per Gibbs, J., that in a separate Hindu family a Hindu mother takes a life interest in the immoveable property of her husband dying without male issue, or in the immoveable property of her only son dying a minor, and an absolute estate in the moveable property left under such circumstances.

The Court followed the rule laid down by Arnold, C.J., in Jamyatram v. Bai Jamna (II Bombay H. Ct. R. 10), that property acquired by inheritance, and which therefore becomes part of the widow's Stridhan, can only consist of property inherited by her from members of her own family, in preference to the doctrine laid down in West and Buhler's Digest of Hindu Law.

Note.—The Compiler of this Epitome, with the greatest submission, concurs with the learned authors of West and Buhler's Digest of Hindu Law in questioning, as regards Western India, the soundness of the judgment in Jamyatram v. Bai Jamna. The student is recommended to read pages lxiv–lxvii of the Introduction to the Digest of Hindu Law.

FAKIRAPA SATYAPA v. CHANAPA CHANDMALAPA.

(X Bombay H. Ct., I. 162. Special Appeal No. 313 of 1872.)

Decided by full Bench (Westropp, C.J., Melvill, West, and Nanabhai, JJ.), following Vasadev v. Venkatesh (X Bombay H. Ct. R. 139), and approving of Tukaram v. Ramchandra (VI Bombay H. Ct. R. 247), that in Western India a member of an undivided Hindu family can sell his own share of the family property.

Note.—The reader is referred to Chief Justice Westropp's exhaustive judgment on Vasadev v. Venkatesh (X Bombay H. Ct. R. 139). It had previously been decided in Gando Mahadev v. Rambhat Bhanbhat (I Bombay H. Ct. R. 39), Forbes and Tucker, JJ., that a member of an undivided Hindu family may mortgage his own share of the family estate.

BHASKAR TRIMBAK v. MAHADEV et AL.

(VI Bombay H. Ct. 1. Suit No. 595 of 1868.)

Decided (Arnold, J.) that a Hindu widow cannot dispose of, by gift for religious or charitable purposes, the whole of immoveable property inherited from her husband without the consent of his heirs.

In Western India, a sister taking as heir of her brother takes absolutely as Stridhan, and her daughters, not her sons, succeed to it. The sons are not co-partners in such property with their mother.

All property inherited by a married woman, otherwise than from her husband, classes as Stridhan.

Note.—The reader is referred to Mr. Justice Arnold's long but interesting judgment, to which it is impossible to do justice in an epitome.

KACHUBYAJI v. KACHOBA and Another.

(X Bombay H. Ct. R., II. 491. Special Appeal No. 323 of 1873.)

Decided (West and Pinhey, JJ.) that Hindu Law requires a change of possession to accompany sale, in order to prevent successive purchasers from being cheated by successive sales of the same property, and to obviate disputes of what was really sold. Delivery of possession is the badge of effective sale.

Harjivan Anandram v. Naran Haribhai (IV Bombay H. Ct. R.) approved of. There is a note to the judgment, that it is not intended in any way to limit the power of a mortgagor, though out of possession, to deal in good faith with his equity of redemption as such.

KOTARBASAPA v. CHANVEROVA.

(X Bombay H. Ct. R., II. 403. Special Appeal No. 213 of 1873.)

Decided (Melvill and Pinhey, JJ.) that in Western India, a Hindu widow has no power to alienate immovable property given to her by her husband in his lifetime, and thus becoming Stridhan.

KHEMKHOR v. UNNASHANKAR RANCHOD.

(X Bombay H. Ct. R., II. 381. Civil Petition.)

Decided (Westropp, C.J., Nanabhai, J.) that in the case of a Sompura Brahmin woman, who contracted a marriage with a Sompura Brahmin named Ranchod, during the lifetime of her first husband, but without his consent, the second marriage was invalid ; but as the mother of the illegitimate children of Ranchod, as his concubine, she was entitled to maintenance. The Court reserved its opinion as to whether the consent of the (first) husband to the marriage with Ranchod would have validated the marriage with him.

MORO VISVANATH et Al. v. GANESH VITHAL et Al.

(X Bombay H. Ct. R., II. 444. Regular Appeal No. 29 of 1873.)

Decided (West and Nanabhai, JJ.) that sharers in undivided property not more than four degrees from the last owner, however remote from the original owner, may demand partition, and that partition, once effected, can only be reopened in case of fraud, or mistake, or subsequent discovery of family property.

It is a recognised principle that when a Hindu family has once been proved to have been joint, it lies on those who assert a subsequent separation to prove it. But it is not inconsistent with this doctrine that, as the course of nature itself brings about inevitable changes in a family, the presumption is one which grows weaker at each stage of descent from the common ancestor. Brothers are, for the most part, united; second cousins are generally separated.

Note.—It is a presumption in Hindu Law (see pp. 50, 58) that a family is undivided until partition be proved. The judgments in this case should be studied at length.

DALPATSING v. NANABHAI et Al.

(11 Bombay H. Ct. R. 326. Special Appeal No. 167 of 1864.)

Decided (Newton and Janardhan, JJ.) that a Hindu mother, acting as manager of the estate of a minor, has no more authority to alienate or charge that estate, than the managing member of an undivided Hindu family.

Note.—For the power of the managing member of a Hindu family, see Strange, H. L. 199. The manager's acts, to be of validity, must be for the general good, if not for the immediate and indispensable maintenance, of the whole family, for objects chargeable on the common stock, and for works of piety, which it concerns all should not go unperformed.

SAVAKLAL v. ORA NIJMŪDIN.

(VIII Bombay H. Ct. 77. Appeal No. 172 of 1875.)

Decided (Westropp, C.J., Sargent, J.) that in order to give a purchaser of immoveable property from a Hindu a title as against the beneficial owner, he must show that before he completed his purchase he did everything that he ought to have done, and made all proper inquiries. The purchaser was bound to inquire how the land, which had stood within twelve years before the date of his purchase in the name of the beneficial owner, came into the possession of the vendor. When the owner was not aware of the sale of his land, but subsequently knew of it, and stood by and allowed the purchaser to build on the land, he could not recover the land without compensating the bonâ fide purchaser for the building erected on the land.

BAPUJI AODITRAM et Al. v. UMEDBHAI et Al.

(VIII Bombay H. Ct. R. Special Appeal No. 607 of 1870.)

Held (Melvill and Kembball, JJ.), that when a plaintiff succeeds in a suit against a Hindu son, personally, and as his father's representative, the decree should be against the son, whether he has inherited property or not, but that the decree could not be executed in case of non-inheritance.

RAMABAI v. TRIMBAK et AL.

This was an appeal from the decision on regular appeal of the Assistant Judge at Ratnagiri (Parsons, A.J.), who decided, stigmatising the defendants' conduct as disgraceful, that the plaintiff, Ramabai, had no claim for maintenance against the defendants, her husband's relations. Resolved (Sargent, C.J.; Melvill, J.), that although by Hindu Law the relations of a deserted wife are not bound to support her, yet that she is entitled to maintenance to the extent of one-third of the proceeds of any property of her husband in the possession of such relations, if they were of undivided estate with her husband at the time of his death.

Note.—If the woman's husband deserted her after partition from his relations, his wife during coverture would have no claim on them for maintenance, but could claim maintenance on becoming a widow. See the next case.

Doubtless, if the husband died after partition, the widow would be entitled to recover all property of her late husband's share in the possession of his relations.

UDARAM SITARAM v. SOUKABAI (Widow).

(X Bombay H. Ct. R., II. 483. Special Appeal No. 334 of 1873.)

Decided (West and Nanabhai, JJ.) that the Hindu Law contemplates that on the death of a married son his widow shall continue a member of the father's family; but while it imposes on her the necessity and the duty of attendance to the father-in-law's needs and commands, it exacts from the father-in-law, and those over whom he has control, reasonably kind and considerate treatment.

Maintenance of a widowed daughter-in-law is a primary and legal duty, and one for the imperfect performance of which the Courts must find a remedy in the award of a separate maintenance. This right of the widowed daughter-in-law is quite independent of any property acquired by her father-in-law from his deceased son, as well as of any ancestral property in which such son had a joint interest with him.

Note.—It appears from the Calcutta Full Bench ruling in Khetramani v. Kasinath (II Bombay H. Ct. R., A. J., 15), that the doctrine of the Mithila School of Hindu Law is contrary to that prevailing in Western India. In that case it was held, that the right to maintenance follows, and depends on, inheritance of estate.

See Introductory Chapter on Succession.

RAJABAI v. SADU BHAWANI.

(VIII Bombay H. Ct. 99.)

Decided (Melvill and Kemball, JJ.) that, in order to avoid multiplicity of suits, an award of maintenance to a female defendant in possession should be included in the decree awarding possession to a plaintiff who, as nearest relative, is liable for such maintenance.

TRIMBAK v. NARAYAN.

(XI Bo. H. Ct. R., I. 69.)

Held (Westropp, C.J., Kembball, J., per Westropp, C.J.), affirming

NANABHAI v. NATHABHAI

(VII Bo. H. Ct. R. 46), (Couch, C.J., Melvill, J.), that in a suit to recover a Varshasan (an annual cash allowance, nominally, at least, for religious purposes), as in a suit for undivided family estate, one member of a Hindu united family cannot sue his coparceners for a declaration of right to the whole estate. In a united family a declaration of right to the Varshasan can only be obtained by one coparcener suing for partition of the family estate, inclusive of the Varshasan, and for a declaration of the rights of the several coparceners.

Note.—It has been repeatedly held by the High Court, and by the late Court of Sadar Diwani Adalat, that no member of a Hindu family can sue for any portion of the family estate; he must sue for a general partition of the whole estate of the family. In Pandurang v. Bhaskar (XI Bombay H. Ct. 72), it was ruled, per West, J., that the share of a coparcener in an undivided family, being in the estate as a whole and not in any particular part of it, it can be ascertained only by taking a general account of the whole estate, and making a distribution in accordance with the results of such account.

The sale or other alienation of a share in the undivided property of a Hindu family in Western India (probably not under the Mithila or the Bengal Schools) confers a right on the purchaser, and works a severance so far as to render the purchaser a tenant in common with the parceners other than he whose share has been alienated. The alienation cannot however be completely enforced except by partition voluntary, or by a suit to which all the coparceners must be parties. (Udaram v. Banū, XI Bombay H. Ct. R. 79, Westropp, C.J.; 4 Morris, S. D. A. Rep. 145.)

A purchaser of an undivided share is only potentially in possession, until partition take place, when his possession becomes actual.

RAJENDO NARAIN v. SARODA SUNDARI.

(XV C. W. R. 548.)

Decided (Mitter and Paul, JJ.) that the ceremony of adoption under Hindu Law is essentially of a religious character, since every childless Hindu is deemed certain to go to the hell called "Pāt."

The obligation on a childless Hindu to adopt a son is imperative as a matter of religious duty, and is not optional.

V. SINGAMA et AL. v. VINJAMURI VENKATACHARLU.

(IV Madras H. Ct. R. 165.)

Decided (Bittleston and Ellis, JJ.) that the performance of the fire-sacrifice (Hom) is not absolutely essential to the validity of adoption in a Brahmin family.

The giving and receiving of a boy capable of being adopted is sufficient. Mr. Justice Strange's opinion that the omission of the "Hom" ceremony invalidates adoption among the three higher castes, noted and differed from.

RADA KISAN v. SRIKISAN.

(1 C. W. R. 62.)

Held (Steer and E. Jackson, JJ.), that a suit to set aside the adoption of a second son must be within twelve years, and that the maxim "ignorantia legis nil excusat" applies to questions of the Hindu Law of inheritance and adoption as well as to other laws.

Note.—The Limitation Statute was, at the time of this ruling, Act XIV. of 1859. The present Statute is Act IX. of 1871. It appears to be somewhat doubtful whether the period within which the suit must be brought is now six years or twelve years. (See Act IX. of 1871, Schedule II. 118-127.)

SABALAVAMAL v. AMAKATI AMAL.

(II Madras H. Ct. R. 129.)

Held (Phillips and Holloway, JJ.), that an orphan cannot be adopted. This decision overruled Virapannal Pilay v. Narain Pilay (I Strange's Notes, 91), in which it was held that, though both parents were dead, a child might be given in adoption by his eldest brother.

Note.—The principle on which this case was decided was that there must be giving, as well as receiving, to constitute a valid adoption.

See Introductory Chapter on Adoption.

SAMBHU CHOWDRI et Al. v. NARAINI et Al.

(V C. W. R. P. C. 100.)

TARA MOHAN v. KRIPA MOYI.

(IX C. W. R. 423.)

It was ruled by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the former case, and the ruling was followed by the Bengal High Court in the latter case, that, according to Hindu Law as set forth in the Dāyabhāga, and in the Mitākshara, an adopted son succeeds not only lineally, but also collaterally, to the inheritance of his adopted father's relations.

TARA MOHAN v. KRIPA MOYI.

Held (Lock and Hobhouse, JJ.), following the last two cases, that an adopted son succeeds not only lineally, but collaterally; that the position of an adopted son is affected only by the birth of a subsequent legitimately-begotten son of the adopting father; and that when an adopted son comes to share with heirs other than the legitimately-begotten sons of his adoptive father in the property of kinsmen, he takes the same share that they would have taken. He represents his adoptive father, and is entitled to the share which his father would have obtained.

(Dictum per Lock, J.)

An adopted son of one adopted succeeds only to his adoptive father's estate.

Note.—See Dattaka Chandrika, V. 25: “Whatever share may be established by law, for a father of the same description as himself, to such appropriate share of his father does the adopted son of one adopted succeed. . . . The same rule is, by inference, to be applied to the greatgrandson also.”

SRINIVISA v. KAPANAYANGAR and RAYAN v. KAPANAYANGAR.

(1 Madras H. Ct. R. 180.)

Ruled (Strange and Holloway, JJ.), that a member of a Hindu family cannot, as such, inherit the property of one taken out of that family by adoption. An adopted son is so severed from his natural family that no mutual rights as to succession to property can arise between them. If it would be a violation of the principle of adoption to allow a person adopted to return to his natural family, it would be a still greater violation thereof to introduce to the rights in the adoptive family the natural kindred of the adopted person.

Note.—It is difficult to conceive how the case for the plaintiff could have been seriously argued.

RAKMABAI v. RADHABAI.

(V Bo. H. Ct. R. 181.)

Held, by the full Court (per Couch, C.J.), that in the Maratha country a Hindu widow may, without the permission of her husband, and without the consent of his kindred, adopt a son to him, if the act is done by her in the proper and bonâ fide performance of a religious duty, and neither capriciously nor from a corrupt motive.

In this case the boy adopted was the person who, on the death of the widow, would succeed to the property, if then living. The assent of one of the kinsmen, the father of the boy, was given, and there was no evidence to warrant the supposition that the act was done either capriciously or from a corrupt motive.

It was further held, that an elder widow may adopt a son to her late husband without the consent of the junior widow; and that a widow has no power to adopt where the husband had expressly, or impliedly, forbidden her to do so.

COLLECTOR OF MADURA v. SREMATU MATU.

(11 Madras H. Ct. R. 206.)

Held (Frere and Holloway, JJ.), that a widow can adopt a son without the consent of her husband, but not in spite of his prohibition.

Note.—The last two cases are concurrent, and establish the doctrine in Bombay and Madras that a widow may ordinarily adopt without the consent of her husband or of his relations.

It is not so clear as to Bengal and the Mithila.

It was held by the Bengal High Court, in Collector of Tirhut v. Harūparsad (7 C. W. R. P. C. 71), that, in Mithila, a widow may adopt without permission according to the "Kritrima" form, but that such a son would not leave his own family, and would succeed only to the adoptive mother. It was held in Tanui v. Sarōda (3 B. L. R. A. C. 145), by the Bengal High Court, that the doctrine of Hindu Law, that "permission is to be presumed in the absence of prohibition," relates to a giver and not to a receiver in adoption (Dattaka Chandrika, I. 32). In Bareilly (Raja Chull Singh v. Kūmar Singh, 5 C. W. R. 32), the authority of the husband is essential to the validity of adoption.

BALVANT BHASKAR v. BAYABAI et AL.

(VI Bo. H. Ct. R. O. J. 83.)

Held (Couch, C.J.), that an orphan cannot be adopted, because, to constitute a valid adoption, there must be a giving, as well as a receiving.

The learned Chief Justice quoted and followed Sabalavamal v. Amakati Amal (II Madras H. Ct. R. 129).

CHINNA GAUNDAN et AL. v. KUMARA GAUNDAN.

(I Madras H. Ct. R. 54.)

Held (Scotland, C.J.), that the adoption of an only son is, when made, valid in Hindu Law.

The learned Chief Justice quoted Jaganatha (3 Colebrooke, Dig. 243): "Let no man accept an only son, because he should not do that whereby the family of the natural father becomes extinct; but this does not invalidate the adoption of such a son actually given to him."

Note.—The contrast here to the Roman Law of adoption will strike many readers.

RAJÈ VYANKATRA v. ANANDRAO NUNBALKAR.

(1 Bo. H. Ct. R. 191.)

Held (Warden and Gibbs, JJ.), that if the adoption of an only son, of whatever age, has taken place, and the requisite ceremonies have been duly performed, it cannot be set aside.

If the adopted be not a proper person, the sin lies on the giver and receiver alone; the adoption must stand.

Note.—In contradiction to these two cases is Raja Upendra v. Srimati Rani (I B. L. R. 221). The judgment of Mitter, J., in this case will be found in the Preliminary Chapter on Adoption. (See p. 21.)

RANJIT SINGH et AL. v. KUËR GUJRAJI SINGH.

(Law Rep. Ind. Ap. I. 9.)

Held, by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, per the Right Honourable Sir R. P. Collier, on appeal from Oudh, that where the bulk of the estate of a Hindu family is held and managed by a single member of the family, and the other members receive and enjoy part of the lands as sir, the possession of the bulk of the estate by the manager is not adverse, so as to bar, under the Limitation Act XIV. of 1859, Section 1, Clause 13, a suit by others for partition, unless there are circumstances to show that they accepted the sir lands in lieu of the shares that would have been allotted to them on partition taking place.

Note.—Sir is defined in Wilson's Glossary of Indian Revenue and Judicial Terms, to mean lands in a village which are cultivated by the hereditary proprietors themselves as their own especial share, either by their own labourers at their own cost, or by tenants at will, not being let in lease or farm.

CHANDRABHAGABHAI v. KASUIATH.

(II Bo. H. Ct. R. 341.)

Held (Newton and Warden, JJ.), (1) that separation from her husband's family does not deprive a widow of her right to maintenance if she be indigent; (2) that her Stridhan should not be taken into account in computing the amount to be paid for maintenance.

NARSAPA v. SAKHARAM.

(VI Bo. H. Ct. R. 215.)

Held (Gibbs and Melvill, JJ.), that a woman succeeding to the immoveable estate of her minor son takes only a life interest in it. It is not Stridhan.

HARI RAMCHANDRA v. MAHADAJI VISHNŪ.

(VIII Bo. H. Ct. R. 50.)

Held (Tucker and Gibbs, JJ.), affirming a former ruling of the Sadar Diwani Adalat, that in the Konkan, as well as in the Deccan, but not in Guzerat, a mortgage without possession is invalid as against a subsequent mortgage with possession, but that registration of such a mortgage cures any defect arising from the non-completion of the transaction by possession.

Note.—This ruling, and those on which it is founded,* are presumably grounded on the belief that mortgages without possession (Shāhān) are customary in Guzerat, but unrecognised by usage in the Deccan or Konkan.

The Compiler, with much submission, is of opinion that the distinction between the mortgage custom of Guzerat and the rest of the Bombay Presidency is a purely arbitrary distinction made by the Courts, and that Shāhān mortgages are, or rather were (for the public know that they are now a bad security in law), as common in the Deccan and Konkan as in Guzerat.

* Tajaram v. Mahomad et Al., 2 Borr. 147; Mahomad Khan v. Keroji et Al., Frere, Sel. Dec. S. D. A. 187; Govurdhan v. Sakharam, 8 Harrington, 189.

VITHOBA v. CHOTALAL.

(VII Bo. H. Ct. R. 116.)

Held (Gibbs and Melvill, JJ.), that the Hindu Law is in accordance with the Roman and English Laws that, in the absence of any express agreement to the contrary, a creditor in whose hands a pledge has perished by accident, and without negligence on his part, is entitled to proceed against his debtor for recovery of the debt.

Note.—See Vyavahara Mayūkhū, V. II. 4. Brahaspati: “If a pledge be destroyed by the act of God, or of the king, the creditor shall either obtain another pledge or receive the sum lent, together with interest.” Vyasa: “If the pledge be destroyed by the act of God, or of the king, no fault is by any means imputable to the creditor.”

Katyayana: “When a pledge perishes without any fault of the creditor . . . the debtor is not exonerated from the debt.”

So also Yajñavalkya.

KAMASKI v. NAGARATHNAM.

(V Madras H. Ct. R. 161.)

Held (Scotland, C.J., and Collett, J.), that the daughters of dancing women must, as regards inheritance, be taken as sons, and held to inherit from the mother, similarly to sons under the ordinary law of inheritance.

Note.—See Strange, Manual, 361.

The dancing women are never married.

VIJIA RANJAM et AL. v. LAXMON et AL.

(VIII Bo. H. Ct. R. 244.)

Held, inter alia (Westropp, C.J., and West J.), that the Asura form of marriage, found to be prevalent among the Bhandaris, is probably derived from the aboriginal inhabitants of India, or those occupying it before the Aryan invasion, which of itself is sufficient to account for the disfavour with which it is viewed by Brahmins. The principal characteristic of the Asura form is the giving by the bridegroom of dej, or a money payment to the father of the bride.

By the Mitakshara a woman's Stridhan, if she has been married by the Asura form, goes to her mother, to her father's Sapindas, and to her mother's next of kin, not, as if the marriage had been by one of the four approved forms, to her husband and his Sapindas.

Note.—Mr. Justice West's most learned judgment in this case is a complete examination of the doctrine of, and practice pertaining to, Stridhan. It may be safely asserted that no writer, Hindu or English, has treated the subject with the same erudition and thoroughness.

The Compiler's experience, however, is that the Asura form of marriage does not prevail among the Bhandaris of the Konkan, but that they use the Brahma form, making often a secret payment of money.

See Introductory Chapter on Marriage, p. 9.

SAKHARAM v. VITHŪ et Al.

(II Bo. H. Ct. R. 237.)

Held (Westropp and Tucker, JJ.), that by Hindu as by English Law, the right of a mortgagor to redeem does not, in the absence of any circumstances or language indicating a contrary intention, arise any sooner than the right of the mortgagee to foreclose.

Burrowes v. Molloy (2 Jo. & Lat. 521) referred to, and the declaration of Brahaspati (1 Colebrooke, Dig. 105) referred to.

COLLECTOR OF MADURA v. RAMALIGA SATHUPATI and Others.

ANANDAYI and Others v. NATCHIAR and Others.

(II Madras H. Ct. R. 206. Appeals.)

These were regular appeals from the District Court of Madura.

Held (Frere and Holloway, JJ.), that a widow is competent to adopt a son without the expressed consent of her husband, but with the consent of a majority of the surviving male kindred (Sapindas) of her husband.

ANNADI AMAL v. KUP-PAMAL.

(III Madras H. Ct. R. 282.)

Held (Collett and Ellis, JJ.), that a widow cannot make a valid adoption without the consent of her husband or of his (Sapindas) male relations.

Note.—The rulings in these two cases are on the same basis, that in ancient times the practice among Hindus was, that on the death of a man without male issue, one of his Sapindas raised up male issue for him on his widow, and that the son thus begotten became as the son of the deceased husband. When this practice fell into disuse, before the time of Manu, the want of a son came to be supplied by the fiction of filiation by adoption by the father.

From this naturally followed the sufficiency of adoption by a widow, with the expressed consent of her husband, and, by a natural extension of the fiction, there followed recognition of adoption by a widow by consent only of her husband's Sapindas.

KATIAMAL v. RADA KRISTNAIYAR.

(Madras Jurist, X. 12, 442.)

In this case the plaintiff was one of three sisters whose father had adopted a son. The adopted son succeeded to the estate, and died without issue.

The mother took the estate, and alienated a portion thereof. The plaintiff sued (1) for her one-third share of the property, and (2) to set aside the alienations made by the mother.

Held (Morgan, C.J., and Innes, J.), that the mother took only a life interest, and that the restrictions on her power of alienation were inseparable from her estate, and independent of the existence of heirs capable of taking on her death.

Held, also, that a sister is not a Sapinda to her brother, but that a long line of heirs interpose between surviving brothers and a sister.

Note.—The judgment does not lay down the exact position of a sister as heir to her mother. It is evident that she must be postponed to all Sapindas, and probably, except where the Vyavahara Mayūkhū is the paramount authority, also to Samanodakas, since she cannot perform even the divided oblation.

STRIMUTTŪ NACHIAR et AL. v. DORASINGA TEVAR.

(VI Madras H. Ct. R. 310.)

Held (Scotland, C.J., and Holloway, J.), that the law of inheritance having an essential relation to the offerings to the dead, the sons of daughters when they succeed to the property of their grandfather take by direct right of succession, as being his nearest heirs, like the Sapindas of a man succeeding to his property on the death of his widow, but per capita, not, as Sapindas take, per stirpes.

Note on the last two cases.—The imperative obligation to perform Shradh (funeral oblations) is the key to the entire Hindu Law of Inheritance.

The reason why Sapindas take per stirpes, and not as daughters' sons, inheriting from their grandfather, per capita, appears from the Dāyabhāga :* "Since benefits are derived from the great-grandson as well as from the son, the term son extends to the great-grandson, for as far as that degree, descendants equally confer benefits by presenting oblations of food in the prescribed form of half-monthly obsequies."

See also Dāyabhāga, Chap. III. 1, 18.

* Dāyabhāga, Chap. XI. 1,

TIRAMA MAGAL v. RAMASVAMI et AL.

(I Madras H. Ct. R. 214.)

Held (Strange, J., and Holloway, J.), that the definition of an idiot under Hindu Law is precisely the same in effect as that of Lord Coke. (Co. Lit. 247 a.) Coke's definition is: "The idiot is he which from his nativitie, by a perpetual infirmitie, is non compos mentis."

The *Mitakshara defines an idiot to be "a person deprived of the internal faculty, one incapable of discriminating right from wrong." Such an one is disqualified from inheriting, the reason being his unfitness for the ordinary intercourse of life.

Per Holloway, J., that it would be most mischievous to interfere with the disposition or enjoyment of property merely on account of eccentricity of conduct. The imprudent and profligate entail misery upon themselves and others, but they are not on that account to be treated as insane.

By Hindu Law an idiot is one who has been of unsound and imbecile mind from his birth.

By J. H. BALFOUR BROWNE,

Of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law ; Registrar to the Railway Commissioners.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

Chap. I. Introduction—concerning Rateable Value. II. Railway Rating. III. Canal Rating. IV. The Rating of Waterworks. V. Gas Companies, the Rating of their Property and Works. VI. The Rating of Docks and Harbours. VII. The Rating of Mines and Quarries. VIII. The Rating of Bridges. IX. Cemetery Companies, the Rating of their Property. X. The Rating of Ferries and Wayleaves. XI. The Rating of Tramways. Appendix No. 1. Statutes. No. 2. The Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway Case. No. 3. Valuations. A copious Index.

"The tables and specimen valuations which are printed in an appendix to this volume, will be of great service to the parish authorities, and to the legal practitioners who may have to deal with the rating of those properties which are in the occupation of Companies, and we congratulate Mr. Browne on the production of a clear and concise book of the system of Company Rating. There is no doubt that such a work is much needed, and we are sure that all those who are interested in, or have to do with public rating, will find it of great service. Much credit is therefore due to Mr. Browne for his able treatise—a work which his experience as Registrar of the Railway Commission peculiarly qualified him to undertake."—Law Magazine.

THE LAW OF USAGES and CUSTOMS:
A Practical Law Tract.

By J. H. BALFOUR BROWNE,

Of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law ; Registrar to the Railway Commissioners.

"Mr. Browne has in this work chosen for exposition an interesting and difficult branch of the law. He has discharged his duty with great ability and industry.

"We look upon this treatise as a valuable addition to works written on the Science of Law."—Canada Law Journal.

"This is a very elegantly produced volume, and is written in an extremely scientific and agreeable style.

"As a tract upon a very troublesome department of law it is admirable—the principles laid down are sound, the illustrations are well chosen, and the decisions and dicta are harmonised so far as possible, and distinguished when necessary."—Irish Law Times.

"This work is really a bold and successful attempt to reduce to something like scientific order the many confused and confusing decisions that exist on the law relating to Usages and Customs. We consider Mr. Browne's book to be both valuable and practical."—The Law.

"As a book of reference we know of none so comprehensive dealing with this particular branch of Common Law. . . . In this way the book is invaluable to the practitioner."—Law Magazine.

BY
SEWARD BRICE, M.A., LL.D., LONDON,
Of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

"Here is a volume of 500 pp. upon a title to which, so far as we are aware, not even a chapter of any text-book in this country has been devoted, and to which we are quite sure no distinct heading has ever been assigned in an American Digest.

Upwards of 1100 Cases are cited in this work, of which it may be fairly assumed that few do not involve pecuniary interests of considerable magnitude. In the next decade we may be sure that the doctrine of Ultra Vires as applicable to railroads, municipal and other chartered bodies in the United States, will assume a large political as well as legal importance. We welcome his pioneer volume as a fair result of the author's 'attempt, though, perhaps, nothing more,' to collect and group the more important of these various decisions. . . . This is the only work of its kind afforded the profession of either country. The English cases, many of great authority with us, are here collected and lucidly arranged. Besides the questions constantly presented to the Courts, it happens frequently that Corporation Counsel are called upon to give advice which may affect property of great value. In such an emergency this volume would be of essential service."—American Law Review, October 1874.

"Much as one may be surprised at the confusion which clouds the doctrine of Ultra Vires, it is all the more pleasant to notice the lucid manner in which it has been handled by the author. His arrangement of the work is logical, and his treatment of the parts clear and concise. The work is arranged under four main heads. Each part appears to be well and appropriately filled up. The references to decided cases are full and accurate. The result is a body of law essential as an appendix to any work on Corporations, and such as should be on the shelves of any lawyer who assumes to have a useful and reliable library of modern law."—Canada Law Journal.

"Mr. Brice writes with knowledge and with precision; and his volume is probably as good as was possible in the present stage of the law."—The Daily News.

"A guide of very great value. Much information on a difficult and unattractive subject has been collected and arranged in a manner which will be of great assistance to the seeker after the law on a point involving the powers of a company."—Law Journal.

"Mr. Brice himself calls his work an attempt to reduce a vast mass of authorities to something like order, and to deduce from them some general conclusions. To our mind it is a very creditable and courageous attempt, and really of the same class as those which started our present excellent text-books in other branches of the law. But here the author has chosen for himself a subject of great difficulty, and one in which he will find it difficult to interest the general student. The doctrine of Ultra Vires is of very modern growth, and took its rise in the attempt of our Courts to make old law fit a new state of facts by using and refining upon a maxim. The doctrine is thus, as Mr. Brice says, purely the creature of judicial decisions, and for this reason it forms a most embarrassing and awkward subject for any legal writer. In this case the author has certainly worked hard, and displayed great industry and research. He has endeavoured, and that successfully, to force his subject into some logical order, and to arrange a mass of vague decisions under different heads as clearly as was possible. He has, at all events, laid the foundation for, perhaps, a more complete and systematic text-book; which at some future time, when the Courts are themselves more logical in their decisions, will be written. He has certainly called attention to a most important branch of our law, which has hitherto been much neglected. It is a branch, also, which is daily growing in importance with the growth of Corporations and the increase of Joint Stock Companies. To investigate the principles which limit their capacity, power, and liabilities, is certainly a task worthy of the undertaking by any lawyer, more especially at the present time. We congratulate Mr. Brice on his success in so far as he has gone, and look forward to the time when some future edition of his work shall, the law itself on Ultra Vires having become more settled, be considered as one of our standard works upon its own special subject."—The Law.

"It is an exceedingly valuable work at this time when the rights and powers of Corporations are matters of so much interest in the United States, as well as in Great Britain, and its manifold cases furnish as interesting reading to the business man generally as to the lawyer or justice."—Boston (U. S.) Journal of Commerce.

ENGLISH CONSTITUTIONAL HISTORY.

Designed as a Text-Book for Students and Others.

BY

T. P. TASWELL-LANGMEAD, B.C.L.,

Of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, late Vinerian Scholar in the University of Oxford, and Tancred Student in Common Law.

Extracts from some Reviews of this Work:—

"Mr. Taswell-Langmead has produced a useful and convenient text-book on the historical development of our political institutions. It is well written, carefully arranged, and supplies a trustworthy and fairly full outline of the subject of which the author treats; valuable alike for the purposes of refreshing the memory of those to whom it is still already familiar, and of directing the curiosity of those to whom it is still new. The book is of course a compilation. But it is a judicious compilation, and a compilation from the best authorities. Mr. Taswell-Langmead has drawn freely upon Mr. Hallam, Sir Erskine May, Mr. Freeman, and Professor Stubbs. But he has done more than merely borrow facts and phrases from his authors. He has caught the spirit of recent historical research, at once minute in its accuracy and wide in the views it suggests, of which Mr. Freeman and Professor Stubbs are among the most eminent exponents, and of the effects of which in their writings they have given some of the most conspicuous examples. On the whole, we think Mr. Taswell-Langmead may be congratulated upon having compiled an elementary work of conspicuous merit."—Pall Mall Gazette.

"Here is a book against which there is not a word to be said. . . . It is a remarkably good specimen of its class. . . . The matter of Mr. Taswell-Langmead's book is almost always very good. He has got up his subject exceedingly well, and in a manner highly creditable to his own studies."—Saturday Review.

"It bears marks of great industry on the part of the compiler, and is most completely stocked with all the important facts in the Constitutional History of England, which are detailed with much conciseness and accuracy, . . . and is very full and clear."—Spectator.

"We may therefore state shortly the opinion which we have formed, that Mr. Langmead was thoroughly qualified for the labour which he undertook, and that he has executed his work most ably and most conscientiously. For students of history we do not know any work which we could more thoroughly recommend."—Law Times.

"Mr. Taswell-Langmead's work is intended to furnish a guide to the law student. He has availed himself largely of Hallam and Sir Erskine May, and by judiciously combining the pith of those authors with that of other authorities, has, in our opinion, produced a text-book of no small value, accurate, full, yet not unwieldy, and calculated to smooth very considerably the path of the student. The execution seems to be even and careful throughout, and though the book does not profess to be more than a compilation, it is compiled from a wide range of authorities, and is written in so easy a style as to be likely to attract the general reader."—Solicitors' Journal.

"It is a safe, careful, praiseworthy digest and manual of all constitutional history and law."—Globe.

"We have here, in the compass of one goodly volume, a handy book both for the student at the Universities and Inns of Court, and for the general reader, embracing every topic of constitutional importance, from the days of the Witan to the return of John Mitchel for Tipperary. Mr. Taswell-Langmead's book has the merit of being written in clear language, which is equally adapted for students 'and others.' . . . For conciseness, comprehensiveness, and clearness, we do not know of a better modern book than Mr. Taswell-Langmead's 'English Constitutional History.'"—Notes and Queries.

ENGLISH CONSTITUTIONAL HISTORY.

REVIEWS OF THE WORK—continued.

"The volume on English Constitutional History, by Mr. Taswell-Langmead, is exactly what such a history should be. Mr. Taswell-Langmead writes clearly and concisely, and yet, even when treating of dry subjects, he is always readable. To students of constitutional history the work will be of great value, while it is well worth the careful perusal of all Englishmen who feel any interest in knowing how that constitution of which all Englishmen are so proud, but of which most Englishmen are profoundly ignorant, has grown up. The notes are numerous and well selected, and references are always given to the authorities quoted. The index is full and copious—an important point in a book intended for reference as well as for study."—Standard.

"But we must say a few words about the book before us, and they will be words of high praise. The author has, of course, made ample use of Hallam, Stubbs, Freeman, Erskine May, and other authorities, and a text-book which did not freely use the leading authorities would be valueless. Yet we do not hesitate to describe Mr. Taswell-Langmead's book as an original, as well as a very meritorious, work. It is not a mere compilation. It is the fruit of extensive and well-digested reading. The author has an easy and lucid style, but he has not hesitated to quote from his authorities when there has been no need for condensation. He adopts the chronological method, though not without exception—as, e.g., chapter vii., which is an excellent account of the 'Origin of Parliament.' As a text-book for the student this work will be invaluable, because it is very comprehensive, and yet so arranged and written that it leaves a definite impression of the history, as a whole, on the mind. For young men, and we will add for women who have not the time and opportunity for reading constitutional history, this work is especially adapted. As a text-book for students, we regard it as an exceptionally able and complete work."—Law Journal.

"Mr. Taswell-Langmead has endeavoured in the present volume to bring together all the most prominent features in the Constitutional History of England, and explain their origin and development. The latter portion of his work contains an admirable account of the action of parties in the State since the Revolution, untinged, however, by partisanship, and it is possible to gain from a hundred pages of Mr. Langmead's work a knowledge of the growth and progress of the present system, which elsewhere could only be obtained in many volumes."—Irish Law Times.

"Under the title of 'English Constitutional History: a text-book for students and others,' Mr. Taswell-Langmead has produced a very useful volume, in which he has brought together the results of the labours of Hallam, Professor Stubbs, Mr. Freeman, Sir Erskine May, and other high authorities. The work forms a valuable introduction to the more systematic study of the subject with which it deals, and its simple style, clear arrangement, and, we must add, copious index, adapt it for convenient and rapid reference."—Daily News.

"Every one who takes a real interest in the history of the past and of the present—the true and living scion of that past—will gladly welcome the publication of such manuals as Mr. Taswell-Langmead's, which, at reasonable length and in readable form and language, will do much to make popularly known the origin and the growth of our institutions, and the reasons for their continued existence or moderate and harmonious reform. Such manuals when compiled with the conscientious carefulness here manifested on every page, are not only useful to the large and growing class of students, but are handy summaries of history which no library can do without. . . . The plan of this compendium appears to have been well considered—an element often miserably disregarded—and the materials which the author has chosen to form the solid texture of his work have been judiciously selected. Nothing can be better than the use of Professor Stubbs' admirable volumes, Dr. Freeman's 'Norman Conquest,' and Lappenberg's 'England under the Anglo-Saxons,' for the groundwork of the earlier chapters. . . . The ample commentary on Magna Charta, to which the whole of a long chapter is devoted, is both useful and interesting, and the author has wisely given in the notes the whole of the original text of this celebrated 'landmark in Constitutional History.' . . . Mr. Taswell-Langmead has thoroughly grasped the bearings of his subject. It is, however, in dealing with that chief subject of constitutional history—parliamentary government—that the work exhibits its great superiority over its rivals."—Academy.

DOCUMENTS OF LEGAL AUTHORITY.

By SEWARD BRICE, LL.D.,

OF THE INNER TEMPLE, BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

"To the vast number of people who in various ways are interested in the working of the Act, Mr. Brice's volume cannot fail to be welcome. It is well conceived and carefully executed."—THE TIMES.

"This excellent compilation of the law relating to a subject of very great interest and importance. . . it is well arranged; the practitioner will find all the material ready to his hand, Mr. Brice having spared no pains in describing the procedure as elucidated by the decisions of the Privy Council. In Mr. Brice's work the ecclesiastical practitioner and the church authorities will be provided with a reliable guide to Church Law under the Act of 1874."—Law Times.

"Dr. Brice's book upon the law relating to public worship has been, as may be supposed, specially framed for the use of clergymen, churchwardens and others, interested in the regulation of our Church services. Here there is condensed in one volume all the material for the guidance and control of public worship, and both ecclesiastics and laymen can, by aid of the index, find out at a glance the exact state of the law as interpreted by the highest authorities upon any given point; and churchwardens and others can ascertain the exact steps which should be followed by those who desire to put a stop to breaches of the law. The work deserves, and will no doubt have, a very extensive sale."—Standard.

"To law students the very clear exposition of the various statutes relating to rites and sacraments, ceremonial, vestments, ornamentation, ecclesiastical remedies and punishments, the jurisdiction of the ordinary, &c., will be of the greatest value, as well for the methodical arrangement which characterises it, as for the erudition displayed in the comments, and the clearness and lucidity of the style in which they are couched. Several authoritative enactments relating to public worship, and the various editions of the articles, are given in extenso; and the numerous cases incidentally alluded to throughout the volume are alphabetically arranged and tabulated."—Morning Post.

"Dr. Brice's large and learned work is a very complete manual for its purpose."—Guardian.

"Dr. Brice's book contains a great mass of information on ecclesiastical matters, which must at all times be valuable for reference."—THE RECORD.

"We can confidently recommend the treatise to all those who are concerned in the subject. To students it will be useful as a compendium of ecclesiastical law. To lawyers it will be a handy book of reference. To clergymen and parishioners it will be a valuable guide, and may perhaps prevent some useless litigation. An index of twenty-two pages, and a table of upwards of 300 cases, testify to the labour bestowed upon this treatise; but it is not a mere compilation, and only an author who has thoroughly mastered the subject could have written the book."—Law Journal.

"The purpose of Mr. Seward Brice's treatise on 'The Law Relating to Public Worship' is, as stated in the preface, to give 'a full exposition of the Law of Public Worship, in so far as it concerns the external forms and cultus enforced or merely permissible by the rules of the Church of England,' special prominence being assigned to the subjects of ornaments, ceremonial, and vestments. The work is very carefully and thoroughly done, and includes not only a clear account both of the substantive law and of the means of enforcing it, but the text of the pertinent statutes and of other documents bearing upon the matters discussed."—Daily News.

THE LAW AND PRACTICE IN BANKRUPTCY;

Comprising the Bankruptcy Act, 1869; the Debtors Act, 1869; the Insolvent Debtors and Bankruptcy Repeal Act, 1869; together with the General Rules and Orders in Bankruptcy, at Common Law and in the County Courts;

With the Practice on Procedure to Adjudication, Procedure to Liquidation, Procedure to Composition, and Procedure under Debtors' Summons, Scales of Costs and of Allowance to Witnesses.

Copious Notes, References, and a very full Index. Second Edition. By HENRY PHILIP ROCHE and WILLIAM HAZLITT, Barristers-at-Law, and Registrars of the Court of Bankruptcy.

From THE LAW.

"The aim of the authors in writing this book has been to make it useful to the profession, and in this they have eminently succeeded. Bringing to their task a long and varied experience of Bankruptcy laws, they have been able, from their position as Registrars of the Court, also to acquire more knowledge of the practical working of the new Act than could well have been obtained by any other writer, however gifted and industrious. The last statute, which by itself looked so simple, has, from the number and complexity of the rules framed thereunder, probably surpassed all its predecessors in accumulating a mass of forms and ceremonies. Therefore it is that a book like the above becomes absolutely necessary, more especially to solicitors who have but a small practice in Bankruptcy. The portion of the work which to such will be found most useful, is that on the practical procedure; where they will find plain and minute directions as to setting about the commencement of a Bankruptcy or Liquidation, and also as to its continuance and conclusion. There is also a special and carefully written chapter on Costs. There are included in the work all the statutes, rules, forms, and scales of costs, which can be wanted in a Bankruptcy case; while the Index is a book of itself, and seems unusually complete. The type and binding could not well be better. Altogether we can say of this book that it is the product of hard work, by men who know of what they write, and that it is worthy to stand beside our best text-books on the shelves of every lawyer."

From the LAW TIMES.

"This work is one which has naturally carried with it more weight than any other text-book, having been written by two registrars of the Court of Bankruptcy. In practice it has been found to realise the anticipations formed concerning it, in proof of which we have now in our hands a second edition. Perhaps the most valuable feature of the work is the fulness of the practical details which enable a tyro to transact his business with tolerable security. The first half of the work comprises the Bankruptcy Act and the Debtors Act, which have been carefully and ably noted with all the decisions; and the latter half is devoted mainly to practice and procedure. The Bills of Sale Act and one or two other enactments are incorporated which are frequently consulted by the bankruptcy practitioner. A very elaborate index ends the volume."

From the LAW JOURNAL.

"The work before us also contains the Debtors Act of 1869, the Bankruptcy Repeal Act of 1869, the Absconding Debtors Act, 1869, with several other Acts and all the General Rules in Bankruptcy, printed and annotated in the same manner as the principal Act. There is also a very full collection of forms and bills of costs; but the portion of the work which is decidedly the most novel, and we imagine will prove extremely useful, is that comprised in pages 355-474, which contain an exposition by the authors on the practice on procedure to adjudication, liquidation, and composition with creditors, and on procedure under a debtors' summons. It is not often that a practising lawyer is able to turn to a book on Practice written by the judges of the particular Court to which it relates, and, as it were, stamped with the seal of authority. . . . In conclusion, we have only to say that Messrs. Roche and Hazlitt have appended to their work a very full and copious index, and that we can cordially and conscientiously recommend it to the notice of the legal profession."

From the SOLICITORS' JOURNAL.

"In the book before us, a reader is enabled by means of large consecutive figures at the head of each margin to reach the section and cases he requires without the trouble of referring to the index. In the hurry of daily practice this will probably be found no small advantage. In the subsequent chapters on adjudication, liquidation, composition, and debtors' summons, the arrangement adopted is the convenient one for practical purposes of tracing each consecutive step of the procedure, and welding together the provisions of the Acts, Rules, and Forms, with the substance of the cases. This appears to us to be successfully accomplished, and the book, as a whole, constitutes a useful digest of the statutory and case law. As regards the former, the work appears to contain every provision relating to or connected with the subject, including even the orders made in December, 1869, transferring business then pending. The cases are taken from a wide range of reports and include a considerable number cited from MSS. notes. The index is unusually full, combining both an analysis and index; and, lastly, the type and paper are all that can be desired."

THE PRINCIPLES OF EQUITY.

Intended for the Use of Students and the Profession.

By EDMUND H. T. SNELL,

OF THE MIDDLE TEMPLE, BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

THIRD EDITION.

By JOHN R. GRIFFITH, of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law.

In One Vol., 8vo., 1874.

\* This Work has become a Standard Class-Book in England, Ireland, India, and the Colonies.*

"The second edition of this Treatise was noticed in this Review in October, 1872; the first edition had appeared in 1868. We are glad to see evidence of its growing popularity. As a second book in equity we are inclined to think it is the best which has been published. Mr. Snell's Treatise presents compactly, and (considering the size of the book) with remarkable comprehensiveness, the leading points on the various heads of Equity jurisdiction. Its selection of the most recent Cases is very valuable for the student and for the practitioner who desires a convenient vade-mecum, this book can be safely recommended."—American Law Review, January, 1875.

"We know of no better introduction to the Principles of Equity. While affording to the Student an insight to principles of which as yet he is not master, it places at the service of those familiar with the doctrines of Equity, the most recent cases establishing or qualifying well understood principles."—
CANADA LAW JOURNAL.

"Equity can never be made easy, nor is it desirable that it should be so; but in the fact of the large equitable jurisdiction conferred recently—that is, since 1853—upon Common Law Courts, and the extension of equitable principles and rules, to the exclusion of Common Law, contemplated by the Judicature Bill, it behoves every practitioner to know as much as possible of equity with as little expense of time as possible, and for this purpose we know of no better work than Mr. Snell's. It presents in a small compass the substance of 'The Leading Cases,' and of Story's work on 'Equity Jurisprudence;' while students will be delighted to find clear, logical, and intelligible explanations of its most mysterious process and development. The work professes to be based on the lectures of Mr. Birkbeck, but it has now reached its third edition in a few years, and is admirably noted up with the latest decisions and enactments. We find particularly good information concerning the equitable and statutable rights of married women, and the priorities of equitable and legal, registered and unregistered, mortgages. Counsel, attorney, and student, will find it a useful, and especially a safe guide in what it professes to teach."—Irish Law Times.

"The great merit of the book now under consideration is its scientific arrangement and accuracy. It, therefore, becomes a most excellent guide to those Common Lawyers who have somehow acquired the notion that Equity is a vague term for a sort of natural justice, and that it recognises no rules such as are found in the Common Law. This book is indeed a most praiseworthy and successful attempt to reduce Equity Jurisprudence to a science, and as such deserves every commendation that can be bestowed; for by doing so it makes one more step towards that complete codification of our law which should be the aim and the desire of every true lawyer. To the ordinary student of Equity it is indeed unnecessary for us to say one word in its praise and recommendation. But as every Common Lawyer must before long add to his knowledge some idea of equitable doctrine, it is to them especially that we commend this book. They will find in it the principles of Equity set out and illustrated in a really scientific and, we may say, workmanlike way, and for this reason they will recognise in its method the style of thought and manner to which they have long been accustomed."—The Law.

"We have received the third edition of Snell's Equity, by Mr. J. R. Griffith. The statute and case law has been brought down to the time of publication, and this admirable standard work may therefore be used without any more assistance than is afforded by the current reports."—Law Times.

PRINCIPLES OF CONVEYANCING.

AN ELEMENTARY WORK FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS.

By HENRY C. DEANE, of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, Lecturer to the Incorporated Law Society of the United Kingdom.

"Mr. Deane is one of the Lecturers of the Incorporated Law Society, and in his elementary work intended for the use of students, he embodies some lectures given at the hall of that society. It would weary our readers to take them over the ground necessarily covered by Mr. Deane. The first part is devoted to Corporeal Hereditaments, and the second to Conveyancing. The latter is prefaced by a very interesting "History of Conveyancing," and for practical purposes the chapter (Ch. 2, Part II.) on Conditions of Sale is decidedly valuable. The most recent legislation is handled by Mr. Deane in connexion with the old law, the Judicature Act and the Vendor and Purchaser Act both being considered in this chapter on Conditions of Sale. We might make some interesting quotations, but the work is one which those engaged in conveyancing should purchase and put on their shelves, and welcome it with the recommendations which we have already recorded."—Law Times.

"We hope to see this book, like Snell's Equity, a standard class-book in all Law Schools where English law is taught."—CANADA LAW JOURNAL.

"This is, as its author states, a purely elementary work. It may indeed be called the A B C of conveyancing. In the clearest and simplest language the student will find an outline, firstly, of the various forms of ownership in land, and, secondly, of the ordinary modes of conveyances used in transferring such land from one person to another. The second portion is founded upon lectures that were delivered by the author at the Incorporated Law Society, and is accordingly very clear and practical. The whole work is very well and thoroughly done. Mr. Deane has, we believe, succeeded in writing the very simplest work ever published on the abstruse subject of conveyancing; and has by his language and illustrations, explained points of law in a way that cannot be misunderstood. For this reason, and as being the most elementary work combining the elements of real property law with the principles of practical conveyancing, we can heartily recommend it as a first book on the subject of which it treats. As such we should think it would be both worthy and suitable to be named as one of the books that are required to be read as a preparation for the various Law Examinations."—The Law.

"We can confidently recommend Mr. Deane's work on the 'Principles of Conveyancing.' It is not exhaustive, and does not pretend to go fully into the laws of trusts, powers, or remainders, but it fully explains the several different legal and equitable estates in land and the tenure of land, and the modes of alienation used in conveyances inter vivos and by will. It also fully explains the meaning and value of the several parts of the conveyances, the covenants, conditions, provisoes, exceptions and reservations, habendums, and the proper form of recitals, &c., &c.—a point frequently neglected in other and more pretentious treatises. It contains excellent chapters on purchase deeds, leases, mortgages, settlements, and wills; and, in addition, Mr. Deane treats of conditions of sale most fully and clearly. It seems essentially the book for young conveyancers, and will, probably, in many cases supplant Williams. It is, in fact, a modern adaptation of Mr. Watkin's book on conveyancing, and is fully equal to its prototype."—Irish Law Times.

"A general review of the scope of Mr. Deane's volume and a perusal of several of its chapters have brought us to the conclusion that, though its contents are purely elementary, and it contains nothing which is not familiar to the practitioner, it may be extremely useful to students, and especially to those gentlemen who are candidates for the various legal examinations. There are so many questions set now on case law that they would do well to peruse this treatise of Mr. Deane's, and use it in conjunction with a book of questions and answers. They will find a considerable amount of equity case law, especially in the second part of Mr. Deane's book, which comprises in substance some lectures delivered by the author at the Law Institution."—Law Journal.

"As Mr. Deane's work is addressed to the rising generation of conveyancers, 'students entering upon the difficulties of real property law,' it may be presumed that he does not fear the immediate annihilation of that noble science in its traditional forms by any legislative changes. The first part of the volume is composed of a series of chapters on corporeal hereditaments, and the second part of some lectures on conveyancing recently delivered by the author at the Law Institution. It is enough to say that Mr. Deane writes clearly and to the point."—Saturday Review.

A NEW LAW DICTIONARY,

AND
Institute of the whole Law;

EMBRACING FRENCH AND LATIN TERMS, AND REFERENCES TO THE AUTHORITIES, CASES, AND STATUTES.

By ARCHIBALD BROWN,

M.A. Edin. and Oxon, and B.C.L. Oxon, of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law, Author of the "Law of Fixtures," "Analysis of Savigny's Obligations in Roman Law, &c."

"Mr. Brown has succeeded in the first essential, that of brevity. He has compressed into a wonderfully small compass a great deal of matter. Our impression is that the work has been carefully executed."—SOLICITORS' JOURNAL.

"For the purposes of working law students nothing could be more useful. Besides explaining every legal term, new and old, the author gives short notes upon points of law, which are excellent specimens of clear and compressed writing. References to cases and statutes are abundant, as also to the best text writers on each subject. As an example of Mr. Brown's resolute endeavour to reduce even the vaguest and widest portions of our law to some clear first principles, we may refer readers to the title 'Fraud,' where they will find nine columns of compressed learning scientifically arranged. French and Roman law terms and doctrines are also carefully explained, while even the growth and character of the British Constitution are shortly but clearly set out under their proper headings. As already stated, the book is, for students, invaluable; but members of the profession will also find it useful for ready reference; and certainly the public could find a great deal of curious information in its pages."—The Law.

"In Mr. A. Brown's 'New Law Dictionary,' the object has been to present a complete institute of the whole law of England, expressing briefly, but without inaccuracy or meagreness, the rules and principles of the common law, of Chancery law, of real property or conveyancing law, of mercantile law, of constitutional law, and of public or general, that is, international law. In carrying out this comprehensive scheme the author has arranged the rules and principles of doctrine, evidence, or procedure in lexicographical order, giving prominence to modern law, but giving the ancient law when serviceable in explaining modern principles or phrases. This work, laborious and difficult as it was, has been admirably carried out, and the work is really what it professes to be, a complete compendium. An index to a dictionary is a novelty, but from the exceptional nature of the contents an index was likely to be most useful, and accordingly Mr. Brown has prefixed to the book a copious index by which a student can at once turn to the main body of the work and obtain the information he requires. Authorities and cases are abundantly cited, and Mr. Brown can claim with justice to call his book an institute of the whole law."—Standard.

"In a modest preface Mr. Brown introduces us to a rather ambitious work. He has endeavoured to compress into less than four hundred pages the whole law of England, and has evidently bestowed much pains on the execution of the task. He does not, however, aim at anything higher than rendering a service to students preparing for the Bar or for the lower branch of the profession, and there can be no doubt that he has produced a book of reference which will be useful to the class he has had in view. Mr. Brown has perhaps done about as much as any one, not a rare genius, could do, and his Dictionary will be serviceable to those who are in want of hints and references, and are content with a general idea of a law or legal principle. It is a handy book to have at one's elbow."—Saturday Review.

"This book has now been for some time published, and we have had many opportunities of referring to it. We find it an admirable Law Dictionary, and something more, inasmuch as it contains elaborate historical and antiquarian analyses of our legal system under the several headings. The student and the literary man will find the book very useful in reading and writing. Indeed the people who are not lawyers, but who nevertheless feel a desire or are under a necessity to use legal terms, or who meet them in their course of study, cannot do better than obtain a copy of this work and use it judiciously; they will thereby be enabled to avoid the ludicrous errors into which novelists in particular, and public speakers too, are often led by the inappropriate use of terms whose meanings they do not perfectly comprehend."—IRISH LAW TIMES.

AN EPITOME OF LEADING COMMON LAW CASES;

WITH SOME SHORT NOTES THEREON.

Chiefly intended as a Guide to "SMITH'S LEADING CASES." By JOHN INDERMAUR, Solicitor (Clifford's Inn Prizeman, Michaelmas Term, 1872).

"This should be placed in the 'handy-volume series of law books. Its title expresses its object—that of an Epitome and Guide to Leading Cases. The Cases themselves are stated with admirable brevity and clearness, and the notes turn out to be more full and instructive than their material size would seem to indicate. The type and binding are excellent, and in several respects this is an improvement on the first edition."—American Law Review.

"We have received the third edition of the 'Epitome of Leading Common Law Cases,' by Mr. Indermaur, Solicitor. The first edition of this work was published in February, 1873, the second in April, 1874, and now we have a third edition dated September, 1875. No better proof of the value of this book can be furnished than the fact that in less than three years it has reached a third edition. In this edition the author has inserted the well-known case of Currie v. Misa immediately after Miller v. Race."—Law Journal.

By ALFRED HANSON, Esq., Comptroller of Legacy and Succession Duties.

"It is the only complete book upon a subject of great importance, but which does not come within the regular course of professional study, and therefore requires to be read up when a case having reference to it comes into the solicitor's office.

"Mr. Hanson is peculiarly qualified to be the adviser at such a time. Hence, a volume without a rival."—Law Times.

"Since Mr. Hanson produced his first edition he has been appointed Comptroller of Legacy and Succession Duties. His book is in itself a most useful one; its author knows every in and out of the subject, and has presented the whole in a form easily and readily handled, and with good arrangement and clear exposition."—Solicitors' Journal.

REVIEWS.

"A work which aims at being so' absolutely complete, as that of Mr. Joyce upon a subject which is of almost perpetual recurrence in the Courts, cannot fail to be a welcome offering to the profession and, doubtless, it will be well received and largely used, for it is as absolutely complete as it aims at being. . . . This work is, therefore, eminently a work for the practitioner, being full of practical utility in every page, and every sentence, of it. . . . We have to congratulate the profession on this new acquisition to a digest of the law, and the author on his production of a work of permanent utility and—fame."—Law Magazine and Review.

"Mr. Joyce has produced not a treatise but a complete and compendious exposition of the Law and Practice of Injunctions both in equity and common law.

"Part III. is devoted to the practice of the Courts. Contains an amount of valuable and technical matter nowhere else collected.

"Mr. Joyce's work, within the limits which he has assigned himself, is well done. He has been evidently diligent in the collection of cases, and the points decided are stated with accuracy, and with more fulness of detail than in any work on injunctions with which we are familiar. It cannot fail to be useful in instructing practitioners in the proper employment of this much abused method of procedure."—American Law Review.

"Mr. Joyce has produced a clear, scientific, and thorough treatise upon the subject of injunctions which, unlike most English works, will be nearly as useful to the American as to the English practitioner.

"We doubt if there can be a single case of any note found upon injunctions in the English law that is not cited in these volumes."—Chicago Legal News.

"This work, considered either as to its matter or manner of execution, is no ordinary work. It is a complete and exhaustive treatise both as to the law and the practice of granting injunctions. It must supersede all other works on the subject. The terse statement of the practice will be found of incalculable value. We know of no book as suitable to supply a knowledge of the law of injunctions to our common law friends as Mr. Joyce's exhaustive work. It is alike indispensable to members of the Common Law and Equity Bars. Mr. Joyce's great work would be a casket without a key unless accompanied by a good index. His index is very full and well arranged. We feel that this work is destined to take its place as a standard text-book, and the text-book on the particular subject of which it treats. The author deserves great credit for the very great labour bestowed upon it. The publishers, as usual, have acquitted themselves in a manner deserving of the high reputation they bear."—Canada Law Journal.

"From these remarks it will be sufficiently perceived what elaborate and painstaking industry, as well as legal knowledge and ability, has been necessary in the compilation of Mr. Joyce's work. No labour has been spared to save the practitioner labour, and no research has been omitted which could tend towards the elucidation and exemplification of the general principles of the Law and Practice of Injunctions."—Law Journal.

"He does not attempt to go an inch beyond that for which he has express written authority; he allows the cases to speak, and does not speak for them.

"The work is something more than a treatise on the Law of Injunctions. It gives us the general law on almost every subject to which the process of injunction is applicable. Not only English, but American decisions are cited, the aggregate number being 3,500, and the statutes cited 160, whilst the index is, we think, the most elaborate we have ever seen—occupying nearly 200 pages. The work is probably entirely exhaustive."—Law Times.

CASES AND OPINIONS ON CONSTITUTIONAL LAW,

AND VARIOUS POINTS OF ENGLISH JURISPRUDENCE.

Collected and Digested from Official Documents and other Sources ;

WITH NOTES.

By WILLIAM FORSYTH, M.A., Q.C.,

Standing Counsel to the Secretary of State in Council of India,

Author of "Hortensius," "History of Trial by Jury," "Life of Cicero," etc., late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge.

From the CONTEMPORARY REVIEW.

"We cannot but regard with interest a book which, within moderate compass, presents us with the opinions or responsa of such lawyers and statesmen as Somers, Holt, Hardwicke, Mansfield, and, to come down to our own day, Lyndhurst, Abinger, Denman, Cranworth, Campbell, St. Leonards, Westbury, Chelmsford, Cockburn, Cairns, and the present Lord Chancellor Hatherley. At the end of each chapter of the 'Cases and Opinions,' Mr. Forsyth has added notes of his own, containing a most excellent summary of all the law bearing on that branch of his subject to which the 'Opinions' refer. . . . Our space precludes us from dwelling upon the contents of this work at any greater length, but we think we have said enough to show that it is worthy of a place on the book-shelves of our statesmen, and all who take an interest in constitutional, or rather, national and colonial questions."

From the LAW MAGAZINE and LAW REVIEW.

"Mr. Forsyth has largely and beneficially added to our legal stores. His work may be regarded as in some sense a continuation of 'Chalmers's Opinions of Eminent Lawyers.' . . . The constitutional relations between England and her colonies are becoming every day of more importance. The work of Mr. Forsyth will do more to make these relations perfectly clear than any which has yet appeared. Henceforth it will be the standard work of reference in a variety of questions which are constantly presenting themselves for solution both here and in our colonies. . . . Questions of colonial law by no means occupy an exclusive share of the volume. . . . Among other questions on which 'opinions' are given, and of which careful summaries and generalisations have been added by Mr. Forsyth, are those relating to vice-admiralty jurisdiction and piracy; the prerogatives of the Crown in relation to treasure trove, land in the colonies, mines, cession of territory, &c.; the power of courts-martial, extra-territorial jurisdiction, allegiance, the lex loci and the lex fori, extradition, and appeals from the colonies. The volume bears marks of extreme care and regard to accuracy, and is in every respect a valuable contribution to constitutional law."

From the CANADA LAW JOURNAL.

"Mr. Forsyth at the present juncture has done good service not only to his profession, but to all men who take any interest in public affairs, and we therefore hope that those for whom the book is especially intended will not be backward in giving to it that support which the industry and ability of its author, and the public spirit and enterprise of its publishers, so well deserve."

From the LAW TIMES.

"This one volume of 560 pages or thereabouts is a perfect storehouse of law not readily to be found elsewhere, and the more useful because it is not abstract law, but the application of principles to particular cases. Mr. Forsyth's plan is that of classification. He collects in separate chapters a variety of opinions bearing upon separate branches of the law. Thus, the first chapter is devoted to cases on the common law, and the law applicable to the colonies; the second to the ecclesiastical law relating to the colonies; the third to the powers and duties, civil and criminal liabilities, of governors of colonies; the next to vice-admiralty jurisdiction and piracy; the fifth to certain prerogatives of the Crown: such as lands in the colonies, grants, escheats, mines, treasure trove, royal fish, felon's goods, writ ne exeat regno, proclamation, cession of territory, and creation of courts of justice; the sixth chapter contains opinions on martial law and courts-martial; the seventh on extra-territorial jurisdiction; the eighth on the lex loci and lex fori; the ninth on allegiance and aliens; and then successively on extradition; on appeals from the colonies; on the revocation of charters; on the Channel Islands; on the nationality of a ship, and other matters relating to ships; on the power of the Crown to grant exclusive rights of trade; on writs of habeas corpus; on certain points relating to the criminal law; and lastly, on miscellaneous subjects, such as the declaration of war before hostilities; on the right of war, booty and prize, and on the grant of a marriage licence. . . . This is a book to be read, and therefore we recommend it not to all lawyers only, but to every law student. The editor's own notes are not the least valuable portion of the volume."

THE LAW OF RAILWAY COMPANIES.

Comprising the Companies Clauses, the Lands Clauses, the Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts, the Railway Companies Act, 1867, and the Regulation of Railways Act, 1868; with Notes of Cases on all the Sections, brought down to the end of the year 1868; together with an Appendix giving all the other material Acts relating to Railways, and the Standing Orders of the Houses of Lords and Commons; and a copious Index. By HENRY GODEFROI, of Lincoln's Inn, and JOHN SHORTT, of the Middle Temple, Barristers-at-Law.

"The title of this book is the best possible explanation of its contents. Here we have all the statutes affecting Railway Companies, with the standing orders of Parliament, in a volume exquisitely printed, and of most convenient size and form. We have also, what in effect to the practitioner is a complete manual of reference of all the decided cases on Railway Law, together with an index of so copious and accurate a nature, as to render the discovery of every section and every authority easy in the highest degree. . . . We find pages of authorities on 'transfer of shares,' 'calls,' 'forfeiture of shares,' 'sci. fa.,' 'Lloyd's bonds,' 'contracts by companies,' and 'dividends.' Then comes a mass of matter relating to the voluntary and compulsory acquisition of lands by Railway Companies, while the 'compensation' cases stretch over some fifty pages. So also under the third statute, there are a dozen pages on the powers and duties of Railway Companies in the construction of their works, while the liability of the Companies as carriers of passengers and goods is also elucidated in the most elaborate style. The 'Rating of Railways' adds several pages of authorities. . . . We believe that we have said enough to show that this book will prove to be of pre-eminent value to practitioners, both before Parliamentary committees and in the Courts of Law and Equity."—Law Journal.

THE LAW OF SALVAGE,

As administered in the High Court of Admiralty and the County Courts; with the Principal Authorities, English and American, brought down to the present time; and an Appendix, containing Statutes, Forms, Table of Fees, etc. By EDWYN JONES, of Gray's Inn, Barrister-at-Law.

"This book will be of infinite service to lawyers practising in the maritime law courts and to those engaged in shipping. In short, Mr. Jones's book is a complete guide, and is full of information upon all phases of the subject, tersely and clearly written. It will be quite as useful to, as it is as much needed by, the American lawyer as the English, because the salvage laws of America and England are much alike, and Mr. Jones makes constant reference to American authorities. The book is all the more welcome because the subject upon which it treats is but little understood except by a favoured few. Now, however, if interested people remain ignorant it is their own fault. Mr. Jones has treated a very complicated and difficult subject in a simple and concise manner, and his success is commensurate with his simplicity of style."—Liverpool Journal of Commerce.

"An admirable treatise on an important branch of jurisprudence is compiled by Mr. Edwyn Jones, of Gray's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, who, in a compact volume, gives us a very comprehensive statement of 'The Law of Salvage,' as administered in the High Court of Admiralty and the County Courts; with the principal authorities, English and American, brought down to the present time, and an Appendix containing statutes, forms, tables of fees, &c. Mr. Jones has consulted a wide range of cases, and systematised with much skill and clearness the leading principles deducible from numerous judgments and precedents, both here and in the United States. His work is likely to become a text-book on the law in question."—Daily News.

*The Bills of Sale Registration Acts, and the Law of Voluntary

By H. W. MAY, B.A. (Ch. Ch. Oxford), and of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law.

"This treatise has not been published before it was wanted. The statutes of Elizabeth against fraudulent conveyances have now been in force for more than three hundred years. The decisions under them are legion in number, and not at all times consistent with each other. An attempt to reduce the mass of decisions into something like shape, and the exposition of legal principles involved in the decisions, under any circumstances, must have been a work of great labour, and we are pleased to observe that in the book before us there has been a combination of unusual labour with considerable professional skill. . . . We cannot conclude our notice of this work without saying that it reflects great credit on the publishers as well as the author. The facilities afforded by Messrs. Stevens and Haynes for the publication of treatises by rising men in our profession are deserving of all praise. We feel assured that they do not lightly lend their aid to works presented for publication, and that in consequence publication by such a firm is to some extent a guarantee of the value of the work published."—Canada Law Journal.

"Examining Mr. May's book, we find it constructed with an intelligence and precision which render it entirely worthy of being accepted as a guide in this confessedly difficult subject. The subject is an involved one, but with clean and clear handling it is here presented as clearly as it could be. . . . On the whole, he has produced a very useful book of an exceptionally scientific character."—Solicitors' Journal.

"The subject and the work are both very good. The former is well chosen, new, and interesting; the latter has the quality which always distinguishes original research from borrowed labours."—American Law Review.

"We are happy to welcome his (Mr. May's) work as an addition to the, we regret to say, brief catalogue of law books conscientiously executed. We can corroborate his own description of his labours, 'that no pains have been spared to make the book as concise and practical as possible, without doing so at the expense of perspicuity, or by the omission of any important points.'"—Law Times.

THE LAW RELATING TO SHIPMASTERS AND SEAMEN.

REVIEWS OF THE WORK.

From the NAUTICAL MAGAZINE, July, 1875.

"The law-books of the present day are mostly of two classes; the one written for lawyers, and only to be understood by them; the other intended for the use of non-professional readers, and generally in the form of handy books. The first, in the majority of cases, is of some benefit, if looked upon merely as a compilation containing the most recent decisions on the subject; whilst the second only aims, and not always with success, at popularising some particular branch of legal knowledge by the avoidance of technical phraseology.

"It is rarely that we find a book fulfilling the requirements of both classes; full and precise enough for the lawyer, and at the same time intelligible to the non-legal understanding. Yet the two volumes by Mr. Kay on the law relating to ship-masters and seamen will, we venture to say, be of equal service to the captain, the lawyer, and the Consul, in their respective capacities, and even of interest to the public generally, written as it is in a clear and interesting style, and treating of a subject of such vast importance as the rights and liabilities and relative duties of all, passengers included, who venture upon the ocean; more than that, we think that any able-seaman might read that chapter on the crew with the certainty of acquiring a clearer notion of his own position on board ship.

"Taking the whole British Empire, the tonnage of sailing and steam vessels registered in the year 1873 was, we learn in the preface, no less than 7,294,230, the number of vessels being 36,825, with crews estimated, inclusive of masters, at 339,849; but the growth of our mercantile fleet to such gigantic proportions is scarcely attributable to any peculiar attention on the part of the Legislature to its safety and welfare, for, as Mr. Kay justly says, 'it is remarkable that in England, the greatest maritime State the world has ever seen, no proper precautions were taken before the year 1850 to protect the public from the appointment of ignorant and untrustworthy men to these important posts'—the command of vessels, 'in which property and life are committed to them under circumstances which necessarily confer almost absolute power and at the same time preclude for long periods the possibility of any supervision.' The French, he tells us, had an ordinance as early as the year 1584, requiring the master to be examined touching his experience, fitness, and capacity. But in England the indifference on this subject was more apparent than real; it arose, we believe, out of the dislike of interference with personal concerns and private enterprise which is so strongly marked in our national character, nor must we forget that some of the most glorious achievements in our nautical annals have been accomplished by men not strictly trained to the sea, and this fact, no doubt, contributed to the reluctance manifested by the Legislature to apply the principles of paternal government to the protection of our seamen; for the going and coming of hundreds of thousands over the ocean for the purposes of business or pleasure had then but lately commenced; and, moreover, probably it was feared that too much care for the welfare of our seamen would have the effect of diminishing the hardihood, self-reliance, and daring which had up to that time made them the envy of the world.

"In 1854 the Merchant Shipping Act was passed, repealing the Act of 1850. Under its provisions the Board of Trade received its present extensive authority over merchant ships and seamen, Local Marine Boards were constituted for the examination of masters and mates of foreign-going and home passenger ships, Mercantile Marine officers established for the registration of seamen, and Naval Courts for the investigation of complaints against masters, and other matters. Without doubt the result of this system of compulsory examination has been beneficial, and the master may also possess those other qualifications which cannot be subjected to examination. But it is not enough now-a-days that he should be honest, skilful, courageous, and firm; he must also, if he would steer clear of rocks other than those marked on the chart, be something of a lawyer. This, it might seem, would apply equally to all men having the conduct of important interests, and coming into contact with large numbers of men, but to no one else is so large a discretionary power granted, and the very fact that his use of it is not very severely scrutinised, only adds to the caution with which it should be exercised. And then there are many incongruities in his position. He may have a share in a ship, and yet he is but the agent of the other owners; though, if he has no share, and in a case of necessity hypothecate the ship, he also binds himself in a penalty to repay the sum borrowed. We can make no charge of redundancy or omission against our author; but if we were called upon to select any one out of the fifteen parts into which the two volumes are divided as being especially valuable, we should not hesitate to choose that numbered three, and entitled 'The Voyage.' There the master will find a succinct and compendious statement of the law respecting his duties, general and particular, with regard to the ship and its freight from the moment when, on taking command, he is bound to look to the seaworthiness of the ship, and to the delivery of her log at the final port of destination. In Part IV. his duties are considered with respect to the cargo, this being a distinct side of his duplicate character, inasmuch as he is agent of the owner of the cargo just as much as the owner of the ship.

"Next in order of position come 'Bills of Lading' and 'Stoppage in Transitu.' We confess that on first perusal we were somewhat surprised to find the subject of the delivery of goods by the master given priority over that of bills of lading; the logical sequence, however, of these matters was evidently sacrificed, and we think with advantage to the author's desire for unity in his above-mentioned chapters on 'The Voyage.' That this is so is evidenced by the fact that after his seventh chapter on the latter subject he has left a blank chapter with the heading of the former and a reference ante. 'The power of the master to bind the owner by his personal contracts,' 'Hypothecation,' and 'The Crew,' form the remainder of the contents of the first volume, of which we should be glad to have made more mention, but it is obviously impossible to criticize in detail a work in which the bare list of cited cases occupies forty-four pages.

THE LAW RELATING TO SHIPMASTERS AND SEAMEN.

'The question of compulsory pilotage is full of difficulties, which are well summed up by Mr. Kay in his note to page 763:—'In the United States no ship is bound to take on board a pilot either going in or coming out of the harbour, but if a pilot offers and is ready, the ship must pay pilotage fees whether he is taken on board or not.' Ships do not exist for pilots, but pilots for ships, so that this option in the use of the pilot, and obligation in the matter of fees, appears to us to be exactly that solution of the difficulty which should not have been arrived at; and, moreover, it is open to the first objection urged by Mr. Kay against the compulsory system of pilotage, which is, that it obliges many ships which do not require pilots to pay for keeping up a staff for those who do. Seven other cogent reasons, for which we must refer the reader to the book itself, though most of them, indeed, will instantly present themselves to the minds of sailors without even an effort of memory, are noted. Section 338 of the Merchant Shipping Act provides that no owner or master of any ship shall be answerable to any person whatever for any loss or damage occasioned by the fault or incapacity of any qualified pilot acting in charge of such ship within any district where the employment of a pilot is compulsory by law. If he interferes to correct the pilot in the handling of a ship, with the peculiarities of which the latter cannot generally be acquainted, he may render himself and the owners liable in case of accident, and so a premium is offered to his indifference, proof being always required that the damage was occasioned solely by the pilot's neglect or fault, to entitle the owners to the benefit of this section. The decision in the case of the General de Caen well illustrates some of the difficulties surrounding the subject. She was a French ship upon the Thames, where the employment of a pilot is compulsory, and she, therefore, took on board a pilot as well as a waterman to take the wheel in consequence of none of the crew being able to understand English. The waterman put her helm up instead of luffing as the pilot ordered, whereby a barge was run into and damaged. The French owner claimed under Section 389 of 17 and 18 Vic., c. 104. It was held that the pilot was not answerable for the waterman's incapacity or fault; that the pilot gave the proper orders; that it would be contrary to justice to say that the pilot was solely liable for the collision; that the waterman was the servant of the owners, and that they, therefore, were liable. The real question at issue seems to have been whether the English pilot ought to have spoken French or the French ship to have had on board a helmsman who could understand English, and the corollary, when the decision had been given in favour of the former, that the Government officer, when engaging the helmsman, was acting merely as the agent of the French owners.

'The master has a large authority over the passengers on board his ship, equal in cases of great emergency to that which he possesses over the crew. Lord Ellenborough has decided—it will comfort intending travellers by sea to hear, especially if this country should again become involved in a war with a nation which, unlike Ashanti and Abyssinia, possesses a navy—that a master exceeded the limits of his authority in placing a passenger who refused to fight on the poop, though willing to do so elsewhere, in irons all night on that particular part of the ship to which he had objected.

'It is for the interest and security of commerce and navigation that it should be generally known that the amount of service rendered is not the only or proper test by which the amount of salvage reward is estimated, but the Court will grant to successful salvage an amount which much exceeds a mere remuneration for work and labour in order that the salvors should be encouraged to run the risk of such enterprises and go promptly to the succour of lives or vessels in distress, though they must take care that they do not by their subsequent conduct forfeit their claims to such reward.

'That it should be necessary to entice men by money to save the lives of their fellow-creatures is not a matter for congratulation; still it was no doubt to some extent anomalous that formerly, whilst large proportionate sums were paid for the recovery of property, for the rescuing of human life unless associated with property, no salvage reward could be recovered. But by Section 458 of the Merchant Shipping Act the preservation of human life is made a distinct ground of salvage reward, with priority over all other claims for salvage where the property is insufficient, and if the value of the property is not adequate to the payment of the claim for life-salvage alone, the Board of Trade is empowered to award to the salvors such sum as it deems fit, either in part or whole satisfaction.

'There is, perhaps, no species of service liable to a greater variety of circumstances under which it can be performed than salvage. Consequently we cannot be surprised that questions of this kind frequently come before the Courts, and that the number of decided cases is very large; but Mr. Kay has succeeded in an admirable way in extracting the main points connected with each case, and in presenting them in as few words as possible. Of course fuller information may sometimes be required, but the reader will then know where to find it.

'In conclusion, we can heartily congratulate Mr. Kay upon his success. His work everywhere bears traces of a solicitude to avoid anything like an obtrusive display of his own powers at the expense of the solid matter pertaining to the subject, whilst those observations which he permits himself to make are always of importance and to the point; and in face of the legislation which must soon take place, whether beneficially or otherwise, we think his book, looking at it in other than a professional light, could scarcely have made its appearance at a more opportune moment.'

From the LIVERPOOL JOURNAL OF COMMERCE.

"The Law relating to Shipmasters and Seamen—such is the title of a voluminous and important work which has just been issued by Messrs. Stevens and Haynes, the eminent law publishers, of London. The author is Mr. Joseph Kay, Q.C., and while treating generally of the law relating to shipmasters and seamen, he refers more particularly to their appointment, duties, rights, liabilities, and remedies. It consists of two large volumes, the text occupying nearly twelve hundred pages, and the value of the work being enhanced by copious appendices and index, and by the quotation of a mass of authorities. . . . In a short note of dedication Mr. Kay observes that he had been engaged on it for the last ten years. The result of this assiduity and care has been the production of a standard work on the subject to which it relates. . . . As to the value of the work itself, it can hardly be properly treated of in limited space. It is divided into fifteen parts which have reference to the public authorities having control in shipping matters, the appointment, certificates, &c., of the master, his duties on the voyage, his duties and powers with respect to the cargo, bills of lading, stoppage in transitu, personal contracts binding the shipowner, hypothecation, the crew, pilots, passengers, collisions, salvage, the master's remedies and his liabilities. From this range of topics it will be seen that the work must be an invaluable one to the shipowner, shipmaster, or consul at a foreign port. The language is clear and simple, while the legal standing of the author is a sufficient guarantee that he writes with the requisite authority, and that the cases quoted by him are decisive as regards the points on which he touches. The work is excellently 'got up,' and its appearance is quite consistent with its standard character as a treatise on the law relating to shipmasters and seamen."

From the BOSTON (U. S.) JOURNAL OF COMMERCE.

"Of volumes with such a magnitude of pages, filled with abstruse matter, made plain and clear, we have only room to give the heads of the Analysis of Contents, without alluding to the various branches. They are laid out in fifteen parts, viz.: The Public Authorities; Appointment, Certificates, &c. of the Master; the Voyage; Master's Duties and Powers with respect to Cargo; Bills of Lading; Stoppage in Transitu; When the Master may bind the Shipowner by his Personal Contract; Hypothecation; the Crew; Pilots; Passengers; Collisions; Salvage; the Master's Remedies and his Liabilities. Then follow the appendices, thirty-four in number, which contain a great deal of maritime law information, as also the 'Index to Cases,' and here the immense labour of the compiler is seen in its fullest and most distinct sense. The index of cases decided in Courts of Final Appeal, relating to maritime disputes, enumerated in lines alphabetically, makes forty-two long pages. These are necessarily brief in abstract, but they are really of interest to all shippers and consignees, to masters, owners, and seamen, to underwriters, and to the assured. It would seem hardly possible that so much valuable and really interesting information could be thrown into so confined a space.

"In the abstracts of law cases the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States are referred to very frequently, as precedents in maritime law, and we note, under the head of 'The Master's Duties to the Passengers, irrespective of the statutes,' that the decisions of our courts are oftentimes mentioned."

From the LAW JOURNAL.

"The author tells us that for ten years he has been engaged upon it. . . . Two large volumes containing 1181 pages of text, 81 pages of appendices, 98 pages of index, and upwards of 1800 cited cases, attest the magnitude of the work designed and accomplished by Mr. Kay.

"The total merchant shipping of the United Kingdom consisted in 1873 of 21,581 vessels of 5,748,097 tons, manned by 202,239 seamen; and the total merchant shipping of the whole British Empire consisted of 36,825 vessels of 7,294,230 tons, manned by 330,849 seamen. Mr. Kay justly observes upon these figures: 'For such a vast mercantile fleet, one would have thought that every thing would have been done to render the law affecting such a vital part of our Imperial Empire as clear, as simple, and as easily to be inquired into and understood, as was possible.' Unfortunately, everyone knows that the exact contrary is the case, and that, confused as is the condition of almost every department of English jurisprudence, no one department is in a more hopeless and chaotic state than that which embraces the merchant-shipping laws and regulations. Mr. Kay tells us that these laws are to be discovered by researches into 'thirty-five statutes, seventeen orders in council, great numbers of instructions of the Board of Trade; great numbers of bye-laws and regulations of the Trinity House and of the different ports; and great numbers of cases decided on numberless points in the various courts.' Now, in default of a code setting forth in a clear and comprehensive manner the law contained in this rudis indigestaque moles, and until such a code is formed, the only anchor of salvation to mariners and lawyers alike is some one or more treatises on which reliance can be placed. Mr. Kay says that he has 'endeavoured to compile a guide and reference book for masters, ship agents, and consuls.' He has been so modest as not to add lawyers to the list of his pupils; but his work will, we think, be welcomed by lawyers who have to do with shipping transactions, almost as cordially as it undoubtedly will be by those who occupy their business in the great waters.

THE LAW RELATING TO SHIPMASTERS AND SEAMEN.

"We must not be understood as intimating that all and every part of this work has a legal interest. Much of it concerns only the practical life of the master and crew. But there are many chapters to which members of both branches of the profession, and especially solicitors residing at the great ports, will turn with gratitude to the author in moments of difficulty. For example, Part IV. is on the master's duties and powers with respect to the cargo, and deals with hypothecation, freight, lien, and delivery. Part V. contains an exhaustive treatise on bills of lading, with special reference to the effect of the transfer of the bill of lading upon the property named in the bill. Part VI. explains fully the right of stoppage in transitu, and Part VII. teaches when the master may bind the shipowner by the master's personal acts. So again Part XIII. deals with the principles of salvage, and the nature and reward of salvage services. The great bulk of the book, however, is devoted to the consideration of the rights, duties, and obligations of the master and of the crew. After explaining the powers and prerogatives of the several public authorities to whose control mariners are subject, the author proceeds to the appointment, certificates, &c. of the master, his general duties and authorities on the voyage towards the shipowner, the charterer, the underwriter, and the harbour master. Next are considered the duties and powers of the master with respect to the cargo, his power to bind the shipowner by contracts either for necessary supplies or for absolute sale of the ship, and his power of hypothecation. Having so considered the position of the master, the author next deals with the crew, their engagement, wages, legal rights to wages, and modes of recovery; their discipline, and the legislation for their protection in life, limb, and pocket. Pilots and pilotage are then considered at great length; and then we have a survey of the rights and liabilities of passengers, and the statutable provisions for their protection. Collisions, salvage, the master's personal remedies and liabilities, complete the list of subjects. The appendices contain an immense variety of forms, tables, scales, &c., embracing fees, medicines, boats, protests, bottomry, and respondentia bonds, orders in council, instructions to emigration officers, lights, bye-laws as to pilots, remuneration of receivers, and other matters and things too numerous for detail.

"The volumes are well printed, with wide margins, and present a smart appearance both in cover and page; and, while they will find their way to the cabins of the masters of all big passenger steamers and merchantmen, they will, we believe, also adorn the shelves of many lawyers."

From the MANCHESTER EXAMINER.

"In a brief notice no idea could be given of the importance, or even the extent, of the details referred to in Mr. Kay's book, and a catalogue of the contents would constitute a small pamphlet. There are also in the course of the treatise interesting historical references, and the duties and responsibilities of passengers are not overlooked. Speaking generally of the law of shipping, as defined and described in the book before us, we may say that the seaman has a Magna Charta of his own. The rights of the owner, of the ship's officers, and of the sailors are all clearly recognised on the statute book, and the penalty for the infringement is in every case specified. We read of the precautions for the safety of life and property exacted by the authorities, and of the conditions which must be fulfilled before a vessel is pronounced seaworthy; yet we learn with amazement that before 1850 no proper precautions were taken in England to protect the public from the appointment of ignorant and untrustworthy men as masters of ships. In illustration of the various branches of his subject Mr. Kay refers to more than a thousand cases. The appendices also contain a considerable amount of valuable information, and the index is so complete that it indirectly serves the additional purpose of a glossary. In his preface Mr. Kay modestly hopes that his book 'may prove to be a useful book of reference for intelligent masters and for ship agents and consuls in foreign ports on matters relating to shipmasters and seamen.' That it will prove useful to them we have no doubt whatever, and that it will be gratefully accepted as a boon by many others we are equally sure. Directly or indirectly, it cannot but prove an important work of reference to all who are engaged in the shipping trade, and Mr. Kay deserves the thanks of the commercial as well as of the shipping community for having so successfully carried out his arduous task."

AN ESSAY

ON

THE RIGHTS OF THE CROWN

AND THE

PRIVILEGES OF THE SUBJECT

In the Sea Shores of the Realm.

By ROBERT GREAM HALL, of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. Second Edition. Revised and corrected, together with extensive Annotations, and references to the later Authorities in England, Scotland, Ireland, and the United States. By RICHARD LOVELAND LOVELAND, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

"This is an interesting and valuable book. It treats of one of those obscure branches of the law which there is no great inducement for a legal writer to take up. Questions of foreshore, when they arise, are sure to have a great deal of law in them; but they are few and far between, and Mr. Loveland can scarcely expect his book to obtain the demand it deserves in this country, although we hope that the well-known penchant of American lawyers for subjects with a flavour of legal antiquity will give the publishers a market on the other side of the Atlantic. Mr. Hall, whose first edition was issued in 1830, was a writer of considerable power and method. Mr. Loveland's editing reflects the valuable qualities of the 'Essay' itself. He has done his work without pretension, but in a solid and efficient manner. The 'Summary of Contents' gives an admirable epitome of the chief points discussed in the 'Essay,' and indeed, in some twenty propositions, supplies a useful outline of the whole law. Recent cases are noted at the foot of each page with great care and accuracy, while an Appendix contains much valuable matter; including Lord Hale's treatise De Jure Maris, about which there has been so much controversy, and Serjeant Merewether's learned argument on the rights in the river Thames. The book will, we think, take its place as the modern authority on the subject."—Law Journal.

"The essay of which this is a reproduction was first published in 1830, and Mr. Loveland has simply supplied annotations and appended Lord Chief Justice Hale's 'De Jure Maris,' the case of Dickens v. Shaw, the speech of Serjeant Merewether in the case of the Attorney-General v. The Mayor and Corporation of London, and forms in use by the Board of Trade. Thus we have a very useful compendium upon a branch of law which for a long time has been and still is in a very unsettled state.

"The treatise, as originally published, was one of considerable value, and has ever since been quoted as a standard authority. But as time passed, and cases accumulated, its value diminished, as it was necessary to supplement it so largely by reference to cases since decided. A tempting opportunity was, therefore, offered to an intelligent editor to supply this defect in the work, and Mr. Loveland has seized it, and proved his capacity in a very marked manner. As very good specimens of annotation, showing clear judgment in selection, we may refer to the subject of alluvion at page 109, and the rights of fishery at page 50. At the latter place he begins his notes by stating under what expressions a 'several fishery' has been held to pass, proceeding subsequently to the evidence which is sufficient to support a claim to ownership of a fishery. The important question under what circumstances property can be acquired in the soil between high and low water mark is lucidly discussed at page 77, whilst at page 81 we find a pregnant note on the property of a grantee of wreck in goods stranded within his liberty.

"We think we can promise Mr. Loveland the reward for which alone he says he looks—that this edition of Hall's Essay will prove a most decided assistance to those engaged in cases relating to the foreshores of the country."—Law Times.

A TREATISE ON THE LAW OF DAMAGES.

COMPRISING THEIR MEASURE,

THE MODE IN WHICH THEY ARE ASSESSED AND REVIEWED,

The Practice of Granting New Trials, and the Law of Set-off.

By JOHN D. MAYNE,

Of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

SECOND EDITION,

By LUMLEY SMITH, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

"Few modern text-books have a higher authority than Mayne on Damages. An argument is seldom heard in the courts upon a question of the measure of damages without the work being referred to; and there are several points upon which there was, at the date of the first edition (1856), either an absence or a conflict of authority, and upon which the views advanced by the author have since been held to be law by the courts. . . . It is fortunate for the reputation of the work that so good an editor has been found for it as Mr. Lumley Smith. The additions to the text of the former edition are distinguished by brackets. Mr. Lumley Smith's work has been well done, and the new cases are skillfully incorporated. . . . Probably there is no other one subject upon which the cases reported as well as unreported so frequently present the same difficulty of extracting from complicated statements of fact, special in their character and not likely to occur again, the legal principles involved in the decision, so as to be available for guidance in other cases. It is exactly this difficulty which makes the subject one upon which a good text-book such as the present is peculiarly valuable."—Solicitors' Journal.

"We are glad that this useful work fell into the hands of so capable an editor as Mr. Lumley Smith. It is always a great advantage gained when an editor has had practical experience of the subject with which he deals, and it is a positive gain to the law when busy lawyers can find time to do well the work which is so apt to fall into the hands of those who have little learning and less practice. The law relating to damages is a branch of our jurisprudence peculiarly practical in its nature and highly important to suitors and the profession; it is, moreover, surrounded by difficulties which require a clear explanation before they become intelligible to the ordinary mind. . . .

"The concluding chapter (c. 19) is very important, and we should like to make copious extracts from it. It deals with the 'powers of the court or judge in regard to damages.' We recommend it to the attention of our readers, as indeed we do the entire work, which is excellently executed, with an entire freedom from verbosity, and a good index."—Law Times.

"In the year 1856 Mr. John D. Mayne, a gentleman of the bar, now enjoying a very extensive practice in the Indian Empire, published a treatise on the Law of Damages. Mr. Mayne conferred a great boon on the profession by his labours, and for sixteen years his book has been regarded with high respect in Westminster Hall. In the ordinary course of things such a lapse of time, from the natural accretion of precedents, would have created a demand for a new edition, but in the particular department of law investigated by Mr. Mayne there has been an extraordinary development of principles, exhibited in numerous cases, upon which the judges have expended a large amount of time, industry, and learning. Consequently, the publication of a new edition is not premature. On the contrary, it was high time that the profession should be supplied with a treatise condensing and arranging the matter brought into existence by the contested cases of that period. It is perfectly intelligible that Mr. Mayne's absence from England and the toil of his professional career have prevented him from undertaking this duty himself. But the performance of it has fallen on a deputy, whose success in the discharge thereof might fairly have been anticipated, and who in the result has, we think, not disappointed the reasonable expectations formed concerning him.

"Mr. Lumley Smith has evidently been actuated by a modest desire not to despoil the original author of well-earned fame. He has, as far as possible, retained the primary form of the book, and has distinguished what Mr. Mayne wrote from what he himself has written, by enclosing all the later matter in brackets, adding a brief separate chapter on the assessment of damages in the Court of Chancery under Lord Cairns's Act, 1 & 22 Vict. c. 27. He has also cited many Scotch and Irish cases, and the leading American decisions of recent date.

One word with regard to the book itself will not be out of place. It is well printed, in an excellent form, and of a convenient size—no small considerations in a text-book, which, from the nature of its contents, is useful rather for reference than for study. Good looks in a book set off its intrinsic merits, just as an imposing appearance adds to the dignity and influence of a judge."—Law Journal.

"It will probably be a very long time before the prosecution of the Overend and Gurney directors is forgotten. It remains as an example, and a legal precedent of considerable value. It involved the immensely important question where innocent misrepresentation ends, and where fraudulent misrepresentation begins.

"All who perused the report of this case in the columns of the Times, must have observed the remarkable fulness and accuracy with which that duty was discharged, and nothing could be more natural than that the reporter should publish a separate report in book form. This has been done, and Mr. Finlason introduces the report by one hundred pages of dissertation on the general law. To this we shall proceed to refer, simply remarking before doing so, that the charge to the jury has been carefully revised by the Lord Chief Justice."

SOME RARE LAW BOOKS.

[From "THE ALBANY LAW JOURNAL"]

"Law books are not generally things of beauty. There is nothing particularly gratifying to the esthetic department of the human organism in the conventional typography and sheep-skin. Some of our publishers give considerable attention to the mechanical execution of their books, and deserve and receive a good degree of credit therefor. But, after all, their labours seldom please the eye. In most marked contrast to even the very best of our books, are a series of law books that have been recently issued by Messrs. STEVENS & HAYNES, of London. They are reprints of some of the scarcest of the Old English Reports, and in their mechanical execution would delight the heart of Aldus Manutius, Thuanus, or any other admirer of elegant editions. The black letter type of the originals is faithfully reproduced, the curious old-style spelling and interchange of letters have been closely followed, while the rich antique calf covers are, no doubt, superior to anything that served to encase the original Reports. These editions have been carefully prepared, and some of the volumes have been enriched with notes added in MS. to some copy of the original by its learned owner generations ago.

"This enterprise of Messrs. STEVENS & HAYNES is a matter of universal interest, and appeals to every lover of elegant books. The works which they have reproduced are those which were the scarcest, and for copies of which the most exorbitant prices were demanded. The following is a brief description of the matter of these volumes."

"We have here a fac-simile edition of Bellewe, and it is really the most beautiful and admirable reprint that has appeared at any time. It is a perfect gem of antique printing, and forms a most interesting monument of our early legal history. It belongs to the same class of works as the Year Book of Edward I. and other similar works which have been printed in our own time under the auspices of the Master of the Rolls; but is far superior to any of them, and is in this respect highly creditable to the spirit and enterprise of private publishers. The work is an important link in our legal history; there are no year books of the reign of Richard II., and Bellewe supplied the only substitute by carefully extracting and collecting all the cases he could find, and he did it in the most convenient form—that of alphabetical arrangement in the order of subjects, so that the work is a digest as well as a book of law reports. It is in fact a collection of cases of the reign of Richard II., arranged according to their subjects in alphabetical order. It is, therefore, one of the most intelligible and interesting legal memorials of the Middle Ages."—Law Times.

"The instructive chapter which precedes the cases, entitled 'A proposal for rendering the Laws of England clear and certain,' gives the volume a degree of peculiar interest, independent of the value of many of the reported cases. That chapter begins with words which ought, for the information of every people, to be printed in letters of gold. They are as follows: 'Nothing conduces more to the peace and prosperity of every nation than good laws and the due execution of them.' The history of the civil law is then rapidly traced. KELYNGE'S (William) Reports of Cases in Chancery, the King's Bench, &c., from the 3rd to the 9th year of His late Majesty King George II., during which time Lord King was Chancellor, and the Lords Raymond and Hardwicke were Chief Justices of England. To which are added, seventy New Cases not in the First Edition. Third Edition. In one handsome volume. 8vo. 1873.

KELYNG'S (SIR JOHN) CROWN CASES.In 8vo., 1873, price 4*l.* 4*s.*, calf antique, KELYNG'S (Sir J.) Reports of Divers Cases in Pleas of the Crown in the Reign of King Charles II., with Directions to Justices of the Peace, and others; to which are added, Three Modern Cases, viz., Armstrong and Lisle, the King and Plummer, the Queen and Mawgridge. Third Edition, containing several additional Cases never before printed, together with a TREATISE UPON THE LAW AND PROCEEDINGS IN CASES OF HIGH TREASON, first published in 1793. The whole carefully revised and edited by RICHARD LOVELAND LOVELAND, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

"We look upon this volume as one of the most important and valuable of the unique reprints of Messrs. Stevens and Haynes. Little do we know of the mines of legal wealth that lie buried in the old law books. But a careful examination, either of the reports or of the treatise embodied in the volume now before us, will give the reader some idea of the good service rendered by Messrs. Stevens & Haynes to the profession. . . Should occasion arise, the Crown prosecutor as well as counsel for the prisoner will find in this volume a complete vade mecum of the law of high treason and proceedings in relation thereto."—Canada Law Journal.

TEN THOUSAND PRECEDENTS IN CONVEYANCING,

AND TO

COMMON AND COMMERCIAL FORMS.

Arranged in Alphabetical order with Subdivisions of an Analytical Nature; together with an Appendix containing an Abstract of the Stamp Act, 1870, with a Schedule of Duties; the Regulations relative to, and the Stamp Duties payable on, Probates of Wills, Letters of Administration, Legacies, and Successions. By WALTER ARTHUR COPINGER, of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law, Author of "The Law of Copyright in Works of Literature and Art."

"We cannot close this review of Mr. Copinger's publication better than with the apt quotation with which he inaugurates it: 'Knowledge is of two kinds; we know a subject ourselves, or we know where we can find information upon it.'"

"Mr. Copinger has not only designed an Index which cannot fail to be of practical use, but has successfully elaborated the work designed by combining a perspicuous order of arrangement with a most exhaustive table of contents, and most copious references to precedents. The Index is arranged in alphabetical order, with subdivisions of an analytical nature, the latter being made throughout subservient to the former."—Law Journal.

THE LAW OF NEGLIGENCE,

Illustrated by the Recent Decisions of the Courts of the United Kingdom and America.

By ROBERT CAMPBELL, Advocate of the Scotch Bar, and of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law.

In this Essay, the Author reviews old principles in the light of recent decisions; combining the point of view of the practitioner—noting the latest phase of judicial opinion; with the attempt to digest and harmonize the law, so that (if possible) new decisions may seem to illustrate old and familiar principles, or that the extent and direction of the change introduced by each decision may be correctly estimated.

"I would also refer to some ingenious remarks as to the misapplication of the term 'gross negligence,' which are to be found in a very good book—Campbell's Law of Negligence."—Mr. Justice Willes in the case of "Oppenheim v. White Lion Hotel Co."

"We presume from this being styled the first of a series of practical Law Tracts, that Mr. Campbell is about to devote his attention to other subjects, which, from the success of his first attempt, we shall expect to see him elucidate considerably. If, however, he should ever find time to expand this tract on the Law of Negligence into a complete treatise, we shall expect to find it one of the most satisfactory text-books on English law."—Solicitors' Journal.

THE LAW MAGAZINE & REVIEW.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS AND THE PUBLIC.

THIS old-established Legal Periodical (commenced in 1828) having passed into the hands of new proprietors, and under new editorship, is now published in its old form, as a Quarterly, in November, February, May, and August, at Five Shillings per number. The first number of the Fourth Series was published on the 1st November, 1875.

Special arrangements have been made by the Proprietors for giving to this, the only English Quarterly Review of Jurisprudence, unique information on Legal Bibliography and the Progress of Juridical Science on the Continent, which will be confided to their Foreign Editor, with the assistance of eminent Continental Jurists. A feature of great practical utility will be

A QUARTERLY DIGEST OF CASES

THE AMERICAN REPORTS.

CONTAINING ALL CASES OF GENERAL VALUE,

DECIDED BY THE COURT OF LAST RESORT IN EVERY STATE IN THE UNION.

The Reports of the Courts of Last Resort of the several States contain cases of great general importance, and which are always considered as high authority by the Courts of the other States, but they are buried beneath a mass of practice and local cases of no value outside of the States in which they are decided.

In "The American Reports" the plan is to give all cases having a general value, hereafter decided by the Court of Last Resort in every State, unencumbered by Practice Cases and those of local importance only.

In 8vo., 1873, price 15*s.*, bound,

BY

ARTHUR JOHN FLAXMAN,

OF THE MIDDLE TEMPLE, BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

"Mr. Flaxman's unpretentious but admirable little book makes the duties of all parties under the Act abundantly clear. . . . Lawyers will find the book not only handy, but also instructive and suggestive. To registrars, and all persons engaged in the execution of the law, the book will be invaluable. The index occupies thirty-five pages, and is so full that information on a minute point can be obtained without trouble. It is an index that must have cost the author much thought and time. The statements of what is to be done, who may do it, and what must not be done, are so clear that it is well nigh impossible for any one who consults the book to err. Those who use Flaxman's Registration of Births and Deaths' will admit that our laudatory criticism is thoroughly merited."—Law Journal.

"Mr. Arthur John Flaxman, barrister-at-law, of the Middle Temple, has published a small work on 'The Law Concerning the Registration of Births and Deaths in England and Wales, and at Sea.' Mr. Flaxman has pursued the only possible plan, giving the statutes and references to cases. The remarkable feature is the index, which fills no less than 45 out of a total of 112 pages. The index alone would be extremely useful, and is worth the money asked for the work."—Law Times.

With Appendix of Statutes, Cases and Forms.

BY J. R. GRIFFITH, B.A. OXON.,

OF LINCOLN'S INN, BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

"Mr. Griffith's useful little book has reached a third edition," and, as will be seen from the title, now includes the Amending Act. Both Acts are well understood and clearly interpreted by Mr. Griffith."—Solicitors' Journal.

"Mr. Griffith, the editor of the present work (and he is also the editor of that excellent treatise, 'Snell's Principles of Equity') has, by his introduction and notes, given to the lawyer every necessary assistance in the interpretation of these statutes, which, from their somewhat revolutionary character, require to be carefully studied in order that their relation to the principles of the status of married women at Common Law and in Equity may be appreciated. All the cases decided under these Acts have been quoted and considered; while in the introduction there is a concise statement of the liability of the wife's separate estate to her general engagements."—Irish Law Times.

AN EPITOME AND ANALYSIS
OF
SAVIGNY'S TREATISE ON OBLIGATIONS IN ROMAN LAW.
BY ARCHIBALD BROWN, M.A.

Edin. and Oxon. and B.C.L. Oxon., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

"Mr. Archibald Brown deserves the thanks of all interested in the science of law, whether as a study or a practice, for his edition of Herr von Savigny's great work on 'Obligations.' Mr. Brown has undertaken a double task—the translation of his author, and the analysis of his author's matter. That he has succeeded in reducing the bulk of the original will be seen at a glance; the French translation consisting of two volumes, with some five hundred pages apiece, as compared with Mr. Brown's thin volume of a hundred and fifty pages. At the same time the pith of Von Savigny's matter seems to be very successfully preserved, nothing which might be useful to the English reader being apparently omitted.

"The new edition of Savigny will, we hope, be extensively read and referred to by English lawyers. If it is not, it will not be the fault of the translator and epitomiser. Far less will it be the fault of Savigny himself, whose clear definitions and accurate tests are of great use to the legal practitioner."—Law Journal.

THE LAW OF EXTRADITION.

A TREATISE UPON
THE LAW OF EXTRADITION.

WITH THE
CONVENTIONS UPON THE SUBJECT EXISTING BETWEEN ENGLAND AND FOREIGN NATIONS,
AND
THE CASES DECIDED THEREON.

By EDWARD CLARKE,

OF LINCOLN'S INN, BARRISTER-AT-LAW, AND LATE TANCRED STUDENT.

"Mr. Clarke's accurate and sensible book is the best authority to which the English reader can turn upon the subject of Extradition."—Saturday Review.

"The opinion we expressed of the merits of this work when it first appeared has been fully justified by the reputation it has gained. This new edition, embodying and explaining the recent legislation on extradition, is likely to sustain that reputation. . . . There are other points we had marked for comment, but we must content ourselves with heartily commending this new edition to the attention of the profession. It is seldom we come across a book possessing so much interest to the general reader and at the same time furnishing so useful a guide to the lawyer."—The Solicitors' Journal.

"The appearance of a second edition of this treatise does not surprise us. It is a useful book, well arranged and well written. A student who wants to learn the principles and practice of the law of extradition will be greatly helped by Mr. Clarke. Lawyers who have extradition business will find this volume an excellent book of reference. Magistrates who have to administer the extradition law will be greatly assisted by a careful perusal of 'Clarke upon Extradition.' This may be called a warm commendation, but those who have read the book will not say it is unmerited. We have so often to expose the false pretenders to legal authorship that it is a pleasure to meet with a volume that is the useful and unpretending result of honest work. Besides the Appendix, which contains the extradition conventions of this country since 1843, we have eight chapters. The first is 'Upon the Duty of Extradition;' the second on the 'Early Treaties and Cases;' the others on the law in the United States, Canada, England, and France, and the practice in those countries."—The Law Journal.

"One of the most interesting and valuable contributions to legal literature which it has been our province to notice for a long time, is 'Clarke's Treatise on the Law of Extradition.' . . . Mr. Clarke's work comprises chapters upon the Duty of Extradition; Early Treaties and Cases; History of the Law in the United States, in Canada, in England, in France, &c., with an Appendix containing the Conventions existing between England and Foreign Nations, and the Cases decided thereon. . . . The work is ably prepared throughout, and should form a part of the library of every lawyer interested in great Constitutional or International Questions."—Albany Law Journal.

THE TIMES of September 7, 1874, in a long article upon "Extradition Treaties," makes considerable use of this work, and writes of it as "Mr. Clarke's useful Work on Extradition."

Title Deeds:

THEIR CUSTODY, INSPECTION, AND PRODUCTION,

At Law, in Equity and in Matters of Conveyancing,

INCLUDING COVENANTS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF DEEDS AND ATTESTED COPIES ;

With an Appendix of Precedents, the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874, &c. &c. &c.

By WALTER ARTHUR COPINGER,

OF THE MIDDLE TEMPLE, BARRISTER-AT-LAW ;

Author of "The Law of Copyright" and "Index to Precedents in Conveyancing."

"There is no subject on which a practical knowledge is more required than that of title deeds ; and this volume supplies a want. Mr. Copinger has, in his well-written chapters, entered most fully and thoroughly into the special subject matter of his work, and has accordingly produced a book worthy of being used by every careful conveyancer who knows the importance of studying all questions of title."—THE LAW.

"In dealing with 'documentary evidence at law and in equity and in matters of conveyancing, including covenants for the production of deeds and attested copies,' Mr. Copinger has shown discrimination, for it is a branch of the general subject of evidence which is very susceptible of independent treatment. We are glad, therefore, to be able to approve both of the design and the manner in which it has been executed.

"The work opens with a chapter on the custody of title deeds (1) generally, (2) between trustees and cestuis que trust, (3) between mortgagee and mortgagor, and (4) miscellaneous. Chapters II. and III. treat of the production of title deeds at law and in equity. In Chapter IV. the author considers the custody and production of title deeds on a sale, (1) as relates more particularly to the vendor, and (2) as relates more particularly to the purchaser. Chapter V. treats of the non-production of title deeds ; Chapter VI. of the purchaser's right to the title deeds ; Chapter VII. of attested copies ; whilst Chapter VIII., which will prove very useful to conveyancers, deals with covenants for the production of deeds. There is an elaborate appendix containing precedents.

"The literary execution of the work is good enough to invite quotation, but the volume is not large, and we content ourselves with recommending it to the profession."—Law Times.

"A really good treatise on this subject must be essential to the lawyer ; and this is what we have here. Mr. Copinger has supplied a much-felt want by the compilation of this volume. We have not space to go into the details of the book ; it appears well arranged, clearly written, and fully elaborated. With these few remarks we recommend this volume to our readers. It may be remarked that there is an appendix added, showing the nature of the evidence required in verification of abstracts, a list of the searches and inquiries which should be made on a purchase, and concluding with a selection of precedents of covenants for production of deeds."—Law Journal.

NOTICES OF THE WORK.

LAW TIMES.

"For the form of the work we have nothing but commendation. We may say we have here our ideal law book. It may be said to omit nothing which it ought to contain."

SOLICITORS' JOURNAL.

"This handsome volume aims at presenting a comprehensive magisterial handbook for the whole of England. The mode of arrangement seems to us excellent, and is well carried out.

"As to the care with which the work has been executed, a somewhat minute examination of three or four of the divisions enables us to speak on the whole favourably."

MORNING POST.

"Great pains have evidently been taken in every part of the work to ensure correctness; and this quality, together with that of its great comprehensiveness, can scarcely fail to render this guide to procedure before magisterial and police authorities eminently acceptable to the many classes of persons to whom full and accurate information on the subject it deals with is often of the utmost importance."

DAILY NEWS.

"The Magisterial and Police Guide, by Mr. Henry Greenwood and Mr. Temple Martin, is a model work in its conciseness, and, so far as we have been able to test it, in completeness and accuracy. It ought to be in the hands of all who, as magistrates or otherwise, have authority in matters of police."

LIVERPOOL MERCURY.

"Both to justices and practitioners desirous of obtaining a book of reference giving the present practice of the courts, this book will be found of great service—nay, almost invaluable."

SATURDAY REVIEW.

"Mr. Greenwood, stipendiary magistrate in the Staffordshire Potteries district, and Mr. Martin, of the Southwark Police Court, have produced a portly magisterial handbook applicable to the whole of England. It contains all the statute law relating to the procedure, jurisdiction, and duties of magistrates and police authorities, with notes and references to recent decisions, and appears to be put together, as might be expected from the professional experience of the authors, in a thorough and business-like manner."

MIDLAND COUNTIES HERALD.

"This work is eminently practical, and supplies a real want. It plainly and concisely states the law on all points upon which Magistrates are called upon to adjudicate, systematically arranged, so as to be easy of reference. It ought to find a place on every Justice's table, and we cannot but think that its usefulness will speedily ensure for it as large a sale as its merits deserve."

THE SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE ACTS, 1873 & 1875 :

With the Rules, Orders, and Costs thereunder : edited with Copious Notes, References, and a very Full Index, and forming a complete Book of Practice under the above Acts. By WILLIAM DOWNES GRIFFITH, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law ; late Her Majesty's Attorney-General for the Colony of the Cape of Good Hope ; Author of "Griffith's Bankruptcy."

*The above bound in best basil leather . . . . . 25s.
Do. do. law calf . . . . . 26s.*

Reviews of Mr. W. Downes Griffith's Edition of the Judicature Acts.

Mr. Griffith's notes on the rules are very voluminous. Thus we have five pages on the decisions as to suing persons out of the jurisdiction, five pages on service of process, nine pages on misjoinder and nonjoinder of parties, three pages on demurrers, thirteen pages with a host of cited cases on discovery, twenty pages on production and inspection, three pages on notice of trial, and thirteen pages on abatement of action, and suits, by death, marriage, insolvency, &c. There is in these elaborate notes much matter of great value and interest. The author carefully points out in what respect any given rule follows the old practice, or introduces any new elements. The index is remarkable for its unparalleled copiousness, and too much applause cannot be bestowed on Mr. Griffith for his industry in this respect. We never before observed in any book an index of 146 pages, and those who use Mr. Griffith's book will highly appreciate this part of it. Neither can we fail to praise the type, paper, and general appearance of the work, which are all excellent."—Law Journal.

"Mr. Griffith, as we have already had occasion to acknowledge, has completely mastered the scope of the Acts. His anticipations of points likely to arise in practice cannot fail, in the necessary absence of judicial decisions, to be of great value to the practising lawyer."—Law Magazine.

"Mr. Griffith is not a novice in legal literature. He attacked the very formidable subject of bankruptcy practice under the Act of 1861, in building up two large volumes on the basis of Archbold. In that work he showed capacity for collating and arranging cases, and the practice has proved of the greatest possible utility to bankruptcy practitioners. The same capacity which served him in dealing with bankruptcy practice has served him well in his treatment of the Judicature Acts. The industry and care which he has bestowed upon the index have produced a complete digest of the enactments. This index is by far the most exhaustive which we have met with, either separate or appended to a treatise. A very good specimen of the work, too long however for quotation, is the note on the mode of service of a writ of summons (Order IX.). Another excellent piece of work is on 'Parties,' being an elaborate note to rule 13 of Order XVI. The whole law on the subject is discussed historically, and the note presents a valuable résumé. Perhaps, however, the most remarkable part of the notes is to be found under the title 'Discovery and Inspection,' where Mr. Griffith gives us quite a treatise, citing numerous cases, and giving a clear insight into the law. We heartily congratulate Mr. Griffith upon the production of a very intelligent and ably executed edition of the Acts and Orders."—Law Times.

"Mr. Griffith works out the practice very carefully."—Saturday Review.

"Very much has been done in this book to promote the convenience of the reader. The type is admirably clear and pleasant ; the number of the section or rule is stated at the head of the margin in bold figures, rendering reference extremely easy ; copious marginal notes have been appended to the rules as well as the Acts ; and we observe that even to the forms in the appendices to the Act of last session there are given marginal references to rules conceived to bear upon them. And there is an index extending over 144 pages, so arranged, moreover, as to constitute a full analysis of the Acts and rules.

"Coming now to the notes, these are often lengthy, and in some cases—as for instance, on discovery under Order XXXI. (p. 229), and on change of parties by death, &c. (p. 317), and on parties generally (p. 181)—they really form small treatises or digests of cases. The other notes may be described in general as composed of statements of the object or effect of the section or rule under comment ; references to its origin and to the former law, and criticisms on its wording or probable operation."—Solicitors' Journal.
